MARIAN ELAINE REID

Marion
I have known you for many years, but it wasn't until really the last 9 months that we became real close friends. Since you are my twin and all I thought it was only right that I took the very front page of your annual.

There are four real friendships of which I am going to really treasure, and one of them I can proudly say is yours, for I believe you are a true friend. Of course you know I wish you the very best of luck possible, so I don't have to waste any of my space telling you that.

This summer I hope you will be over to my house as often as you can and of course I owe to yours. Really, Marion, I don't think this year would have been much good without the help of your friendship.

You are a nice and easy going person. I'm glad to know that I can discuss anything with you and of course you know you can do the same with me.

I hope that over the summer time will be informed with each other. And of course you know that we need someone to help you take care of some one or you know cussing the out or something like that. Just me and you will get the job done right.

Marian,
 Having you on an Indianette this year and in my English class have really been nice. May you always work in God's Light and his blessing.

tribe looks at activities through 'kaleidoscope'

Kaleidoscopic — possessing many facets. To portray the numerous facets of West, the staff chose "Kaleidoscopic Reflections" as the theme of the 1971 Tomahawk. Memories of 1970-1971 included faces and activities — faculty, curriculum, student life, athletics, organizations, students, and community. Challenges in each area helped students to prepare for the future and to cope with people and situations. The whole picture included former West students and those who had previously attended other schools. Each one was a part of the kaleidoscope of memories, and all created the image of West during 1970-71.

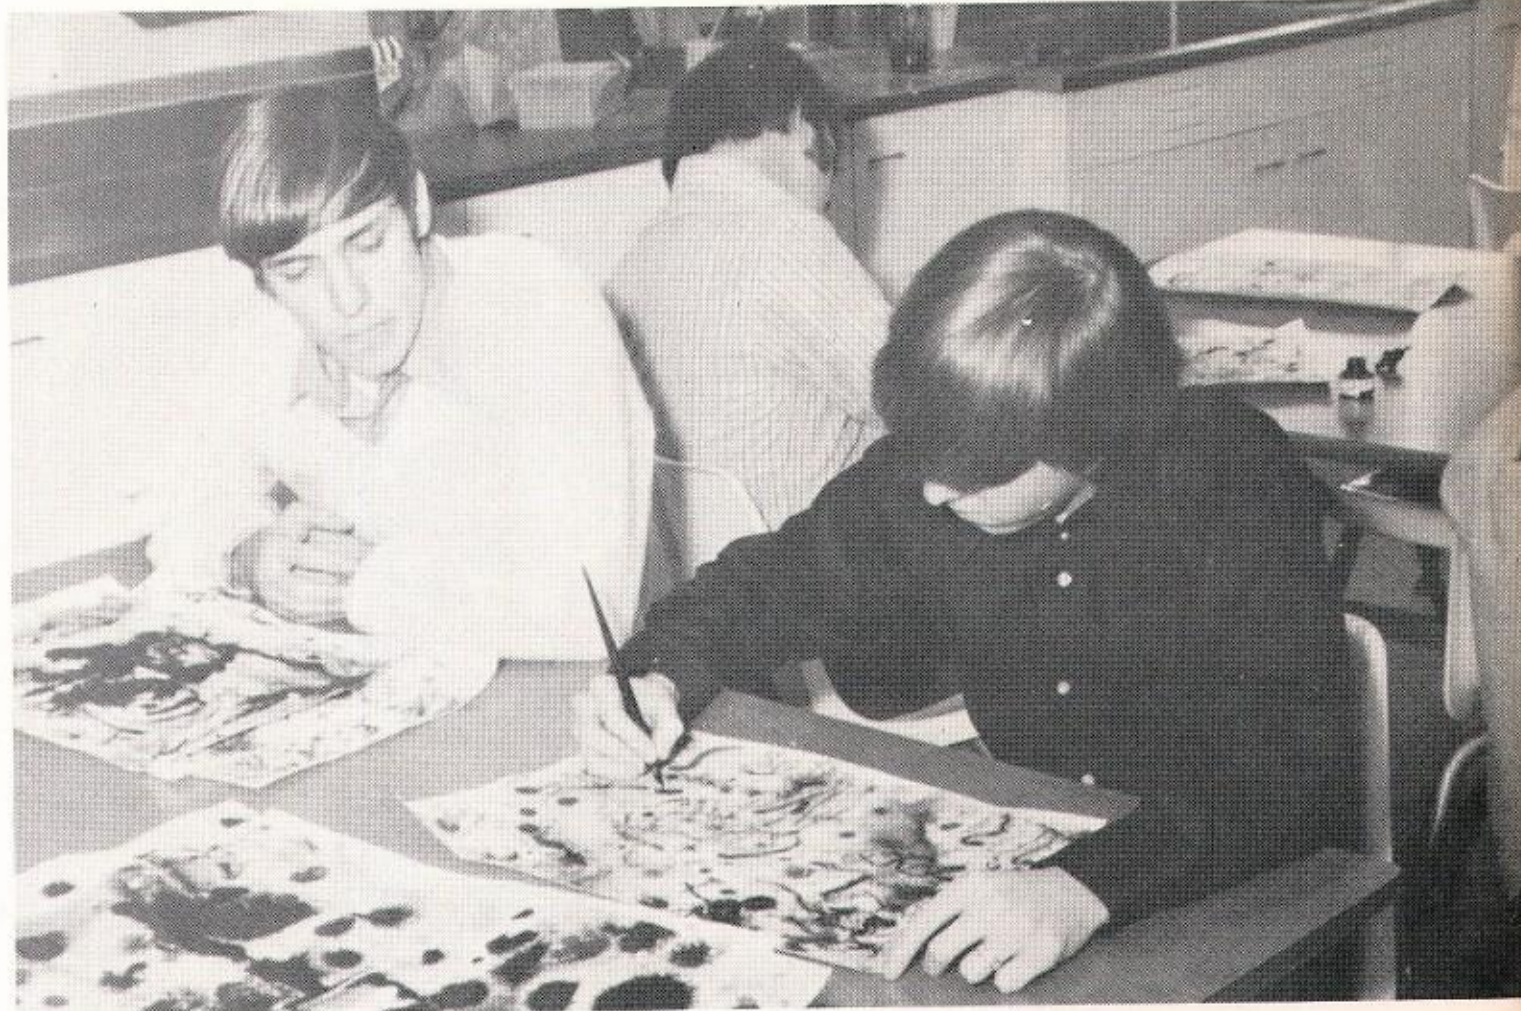

Symbol of student body spirit, the West Indian oversees all activities taking place in the school gym.

During a Halloween club activity, junior Kim Pittman participates in Campus Life's haunted house project.

Seniors Joe Sadler and Donnie Stephenson imitate the homecoming court during Tacky Indian Day festivities.

Senior Marshall Collins observes with interest as junior Bobby Lane displays his artistic talent as he works on his drawing done with ink and water color during sixth period Art II class.

Seniors S. Judson, G. Vaughn, J. Rhyne, C. Cline, and D. Austin decorate the front hall for Christmas.

faculty members supervise social events of year

Students worked continually to complete assigned lessons. In addition to required subjects and a large variety of vocational and elective courses, three new subjects entered curriculum. These were housing, ROTC, and boys' home economics.

Faculty members accepted responsibilities as advisers of organizations. They also chaperoned at dances, pep rallies, and sports events. In addition to these extra-curricular services, faculty members performed their daily duties as teachers in the practical portion of school life.

Guidance counselors aided in the selecting of helpful courses for the future and supervised the PSAT for juniors and the SAT for seniors.

Senior Suzanne Price works for her father by typing some forms at Woodward-Warren Refrigeration Company.

One duty for library assistants Janet McCarver and Donna Hunter is to operate copy machine during sixth period.

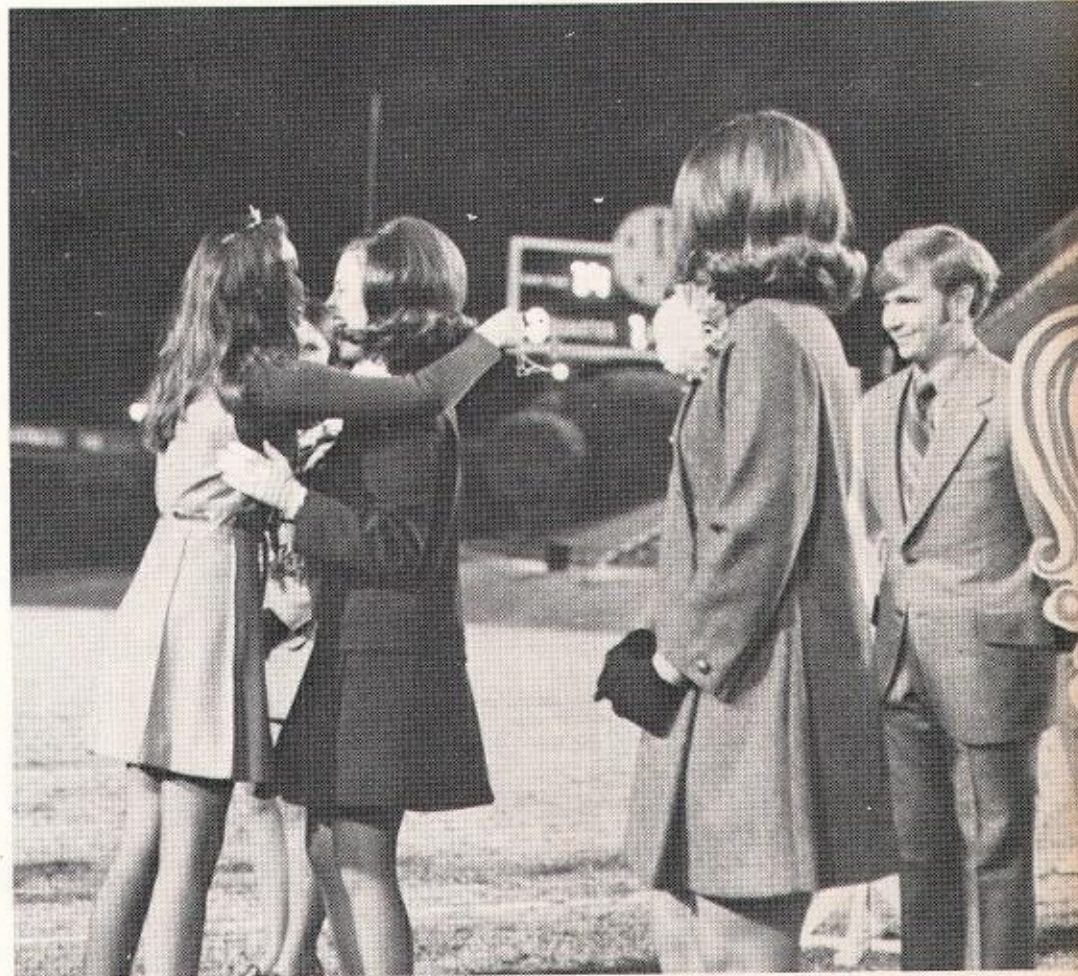

reassignments delay beginning of student activity

As days, weeks, and months passed, daily routine and special events depicted student life. Reassignments of students from different schools added much to the kaleidoscopic picture. Each student added to the unity of every day by just attending school or taking part in clubs, sports, and other organizations. Daily routine was a large part of student life. Each day brought friends together; and the familiar sounds of announcements, the new bells, conversation, and locker doors became evident. Special events such as Tacky Indian Tacky Day, Homecoming, pep rallies, Student Council Day, and Junior-Senior broke the monotony of routine.

Indianettes Jan Jones and Kathy Harris march down North Tryon Street in Charlotte's annual Carrousel Parade.

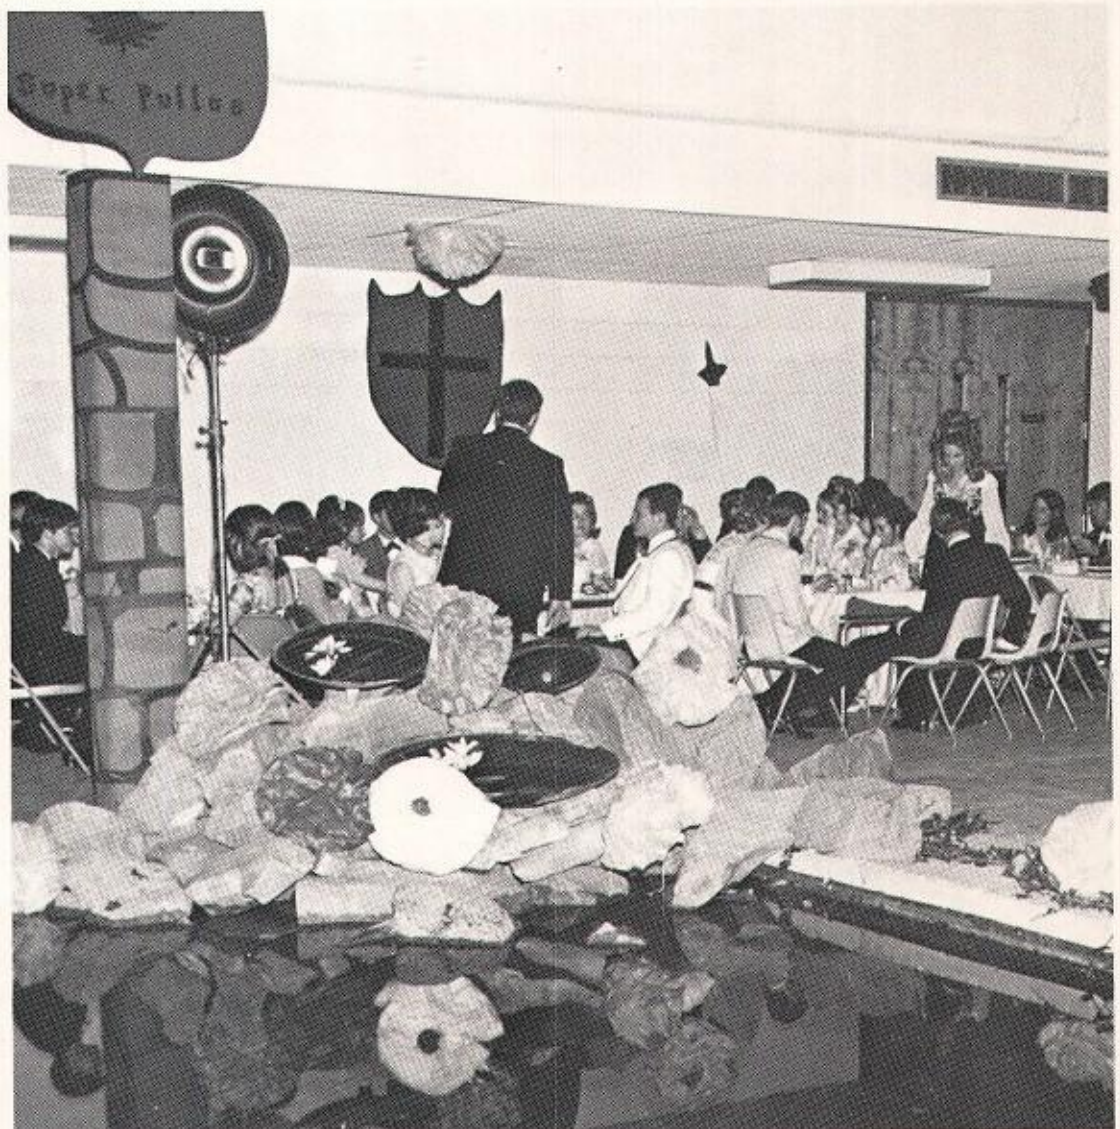

Suzanne Price and Janis Rhyne work on decorations for the Junior-Senior.

football team receives new maroon, silver uniforms

Spirit of competition and pride in the Indians dominated in game after game, as athletic teams displayed ability and sportsmanship. While working together to win and to perform well, the tribe set new records.

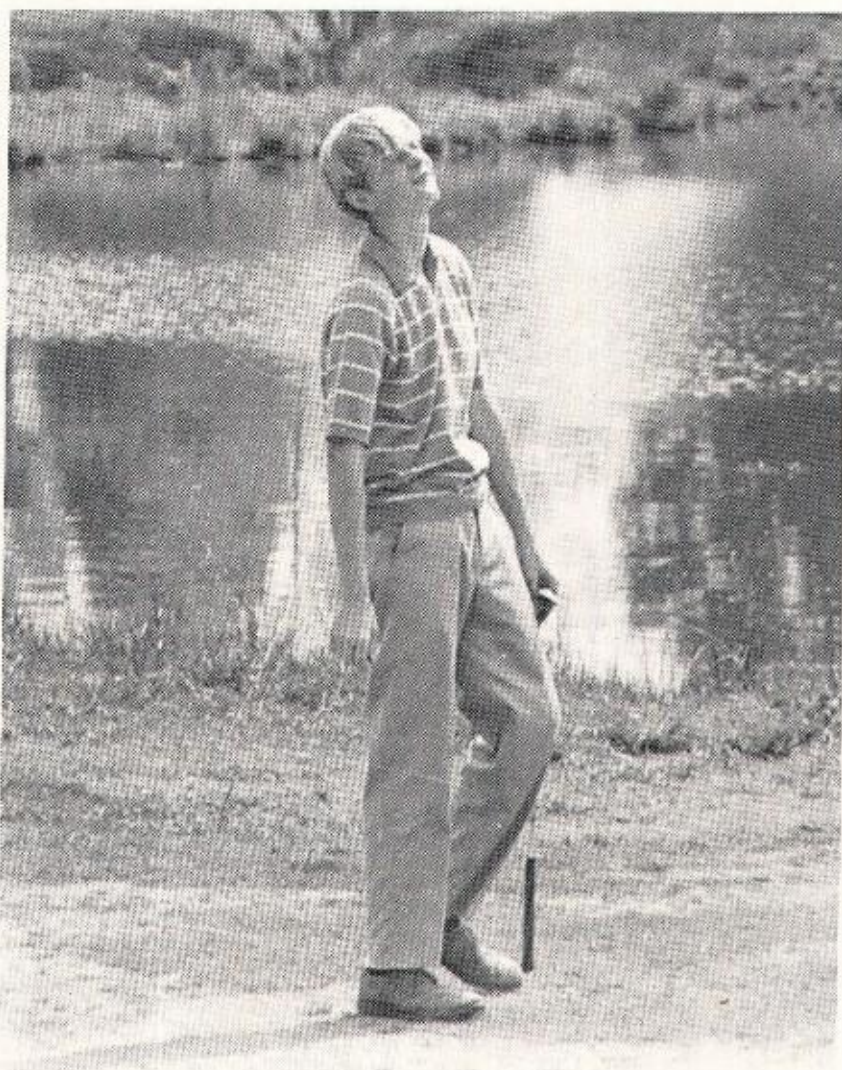

Football, basketball, wrestling, baseball, golf, tennis, track, swimming, and cross country comprised the sports available to boys. Girls chose from a program which included field hockey, basketball, and volleyball.

To provide the experience and inspiration needed, the coaches also played an essential part in the success of every sport.

Interested students could choose from a well-rounded extracurricular program. Through involvement, students gained experience, worked together, offered service, and accepted responsibilities and obligations. Activities gave students satisfaction through working together. Each club specified certain activities in addition to inductions, field trips, service projects, and lectures.

Service clubs gave students a chance to serve. Sponsoring courses limited membership in curriculum clubs to those who had been or were enrolled. Students in the National Honor Society received honorary recognitions.

C.O.O. members C. Diggs, C. Anderson, and E. Bowman receive time sheets from student teacher Mr. Hutchins.

Although each class expressed pride, all seniors, juniors, and sophomores joined to help make West a better school.

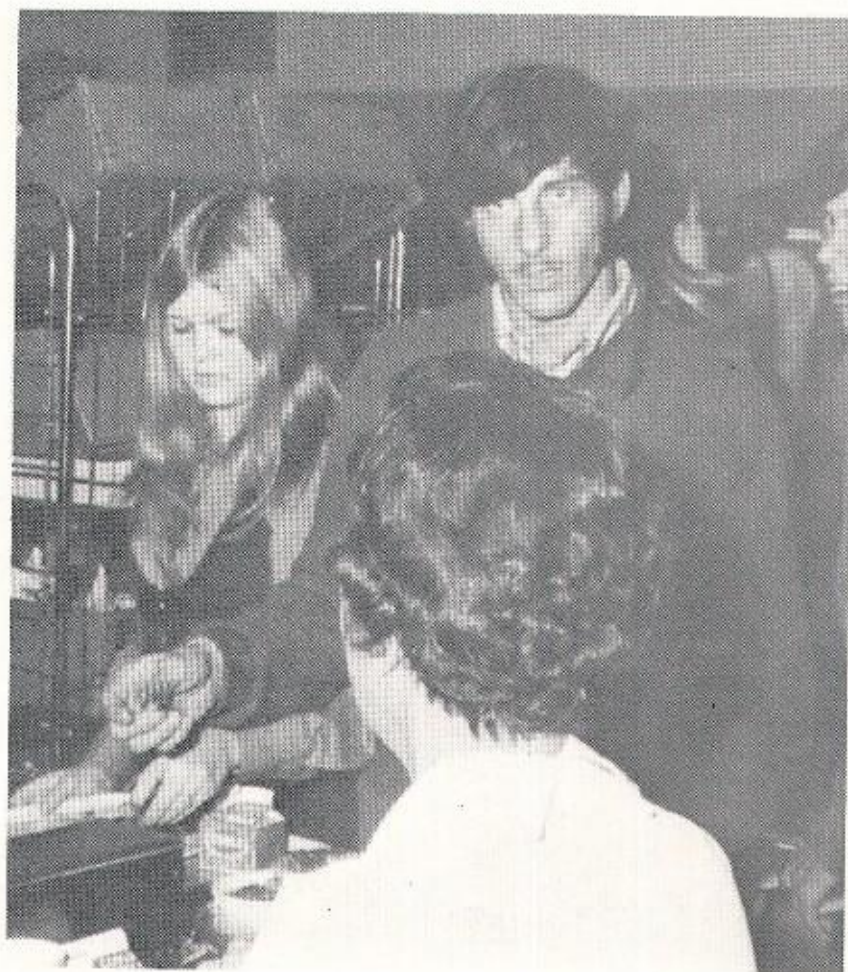

Sophomores enjoyed the excitement of orienting into high school. Juniors worked hard in planning for and working on decorations for the Junior-Senior. They sold Christmas cards to finance an unforgettable prom evening.

After receiving long-awaited class rings, seniors strove to obtain more privileges. Graduation climaxed twelve years of involvement and education.

local firms support 1971 annual with advertising

Local businesses expressed their confidence in the 1971 Tomahawk by purchasing advertisements from business staff members. This played an essential part in the publishing of the annual. Staffers began their duties in the summer. In addition to creating interest in activities of West, members served as public relations agents.

Posters and announcements to encourage the ordering of yearbooks began early in the year. Annual staff members also sponsored an annual signing party at the end of the year.

curriculum

through vigorous sports, students build firm bodies

As school opened, sophomores enrolled in a final year of physical education. Juniors and seniors continued in their physical fitness as gym assistants.

For girls the fall and winter program consisted of basketball, tumbling, volleyball, modern dancing, and stunts on the trampoline and balance beam. In the spring they played tennis and softball and ran track.

Basketball, football, crab soccer, and volleyball composed the boys' winter and fall program. As the weather warmed up, the boys moved outside and concentrated on baseball, track, and golf.

Skills provided by these sports offered students a better outlook toward indoor and outdoor activities. At the same time, students acquired an appreciation for sportsmanship and good physical condition.

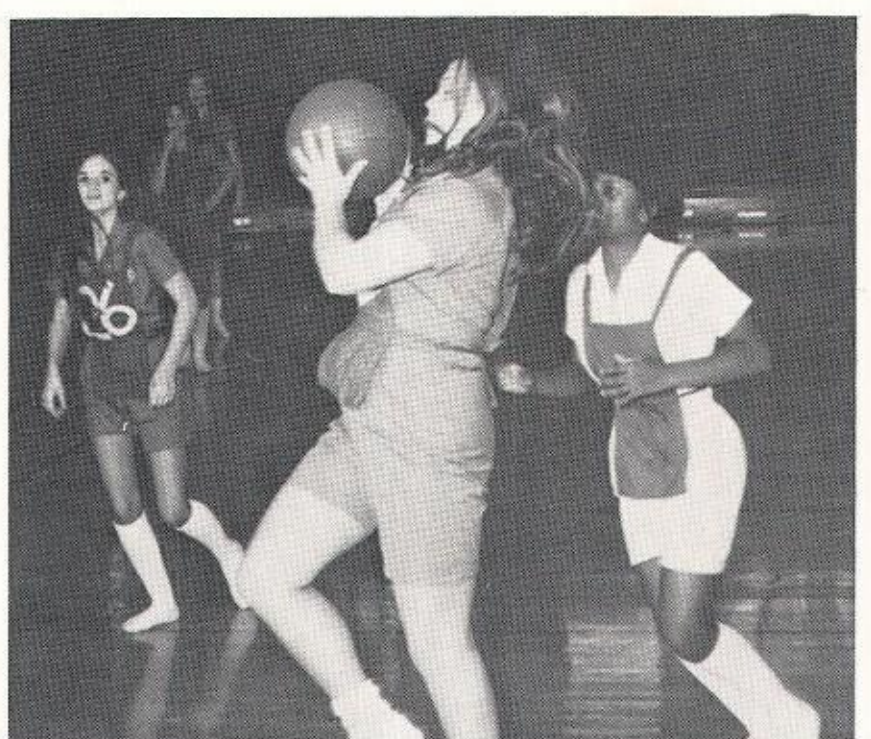

Inside the gym during the winter months, boys compete for possession of the ball in a game of crab soccer.

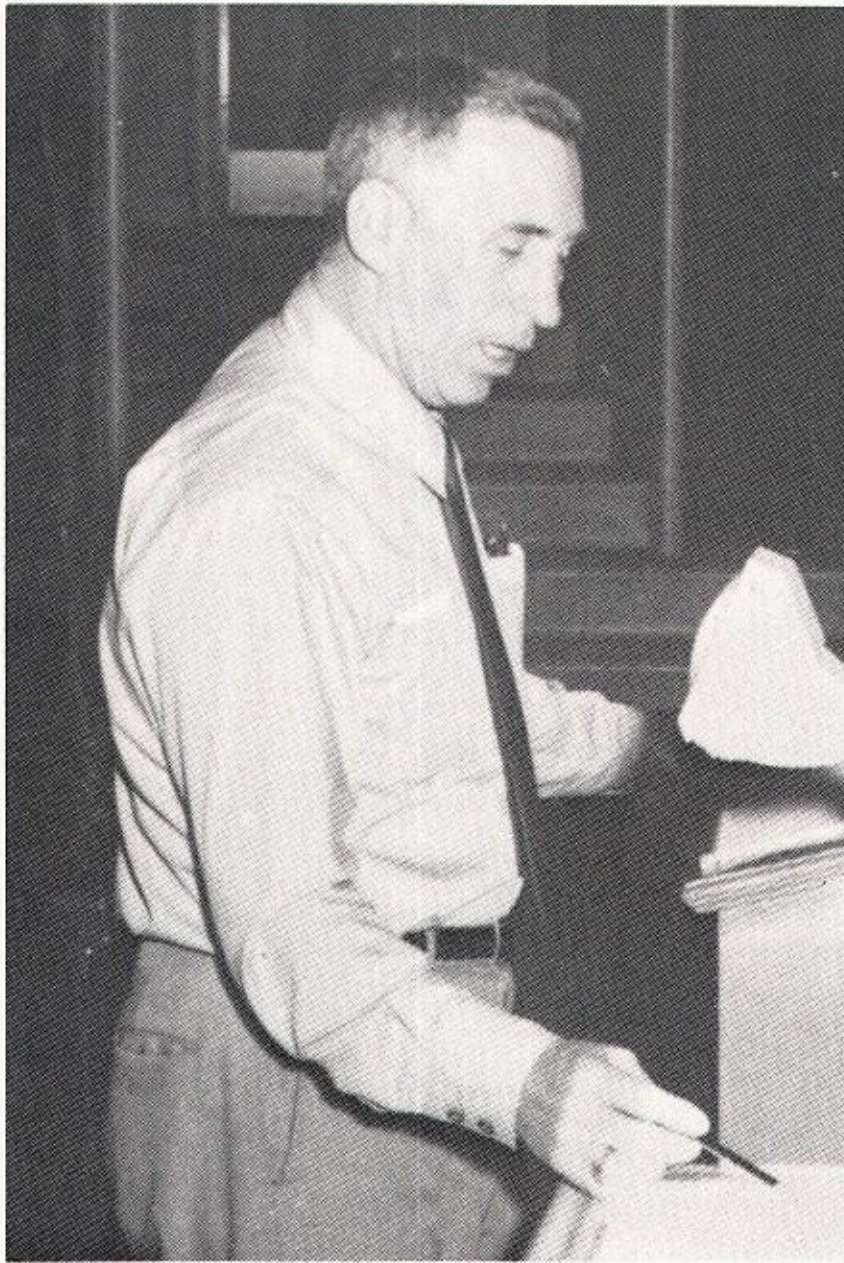

Before dividing into teams for a game of volleyball, Mrs. Kennedy's sixth period physical education students limber up with the jumping-jack-with-a-kick, push-ups, squat thrusts, and various other exercises.

Girls relax and enjoy conversation with friends before lining up in squads for roll call and exercises.

driver ed course lengthened by half-day classes

William Clouse, driver's education instructor, uses opaque projector to stress points in traffic safety.

During the first months of school, sophomores took time from study halls and physical education classes to study North Carolina traffic laws in the driver education course. Due to the half-day schedule during September, the regular six week course was extended to eight weeks.

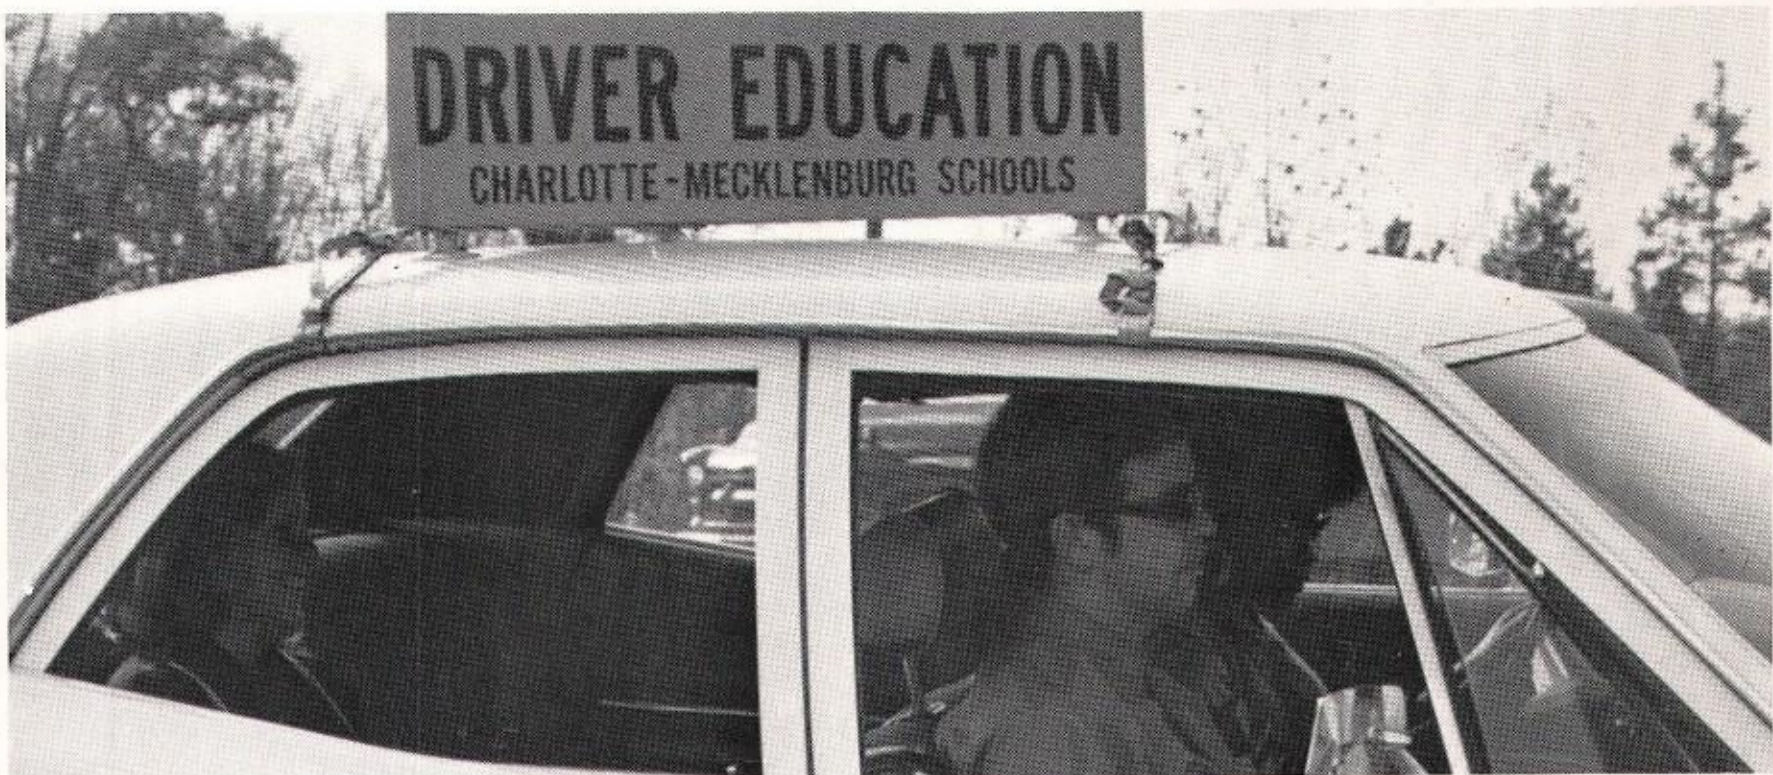

In the classroom, students covered the fundamentals of highway laws and safety. Several films stressed the importance of careful driving. Use of other audio-visual aids enabled perspective drivers to recognize the shapes of various road signs.

Road work began with the usual fear of the first escapade behind the wheel. In the eighteen hours required to finish this section of the course, students lost tension and gained confidence. Six of the hours were spent in actual driving conditions while the other twelve consisted of observation and visual study.

As the period ends, driver education cars return to the school ready for the next class of drivers.

Coach Eddie McArver reviews with student drivers the essential points of operating a motor vehicle and using basic safety rules before they leave the bus parking lot for an hour-long lesson under actual traffic conditions.

By making use of previously learned skills, Kathy Parr works diligently on starting the weaving of a poncho, while other members of the class pursue projects in other facets of art.

Putting on finishing touches, Edward Thacker coats his sculpture with black glaze before baking it in the kiln.

Family living students listen as a representative for Piedmont Natural Gas lists the advantages of a gas range.

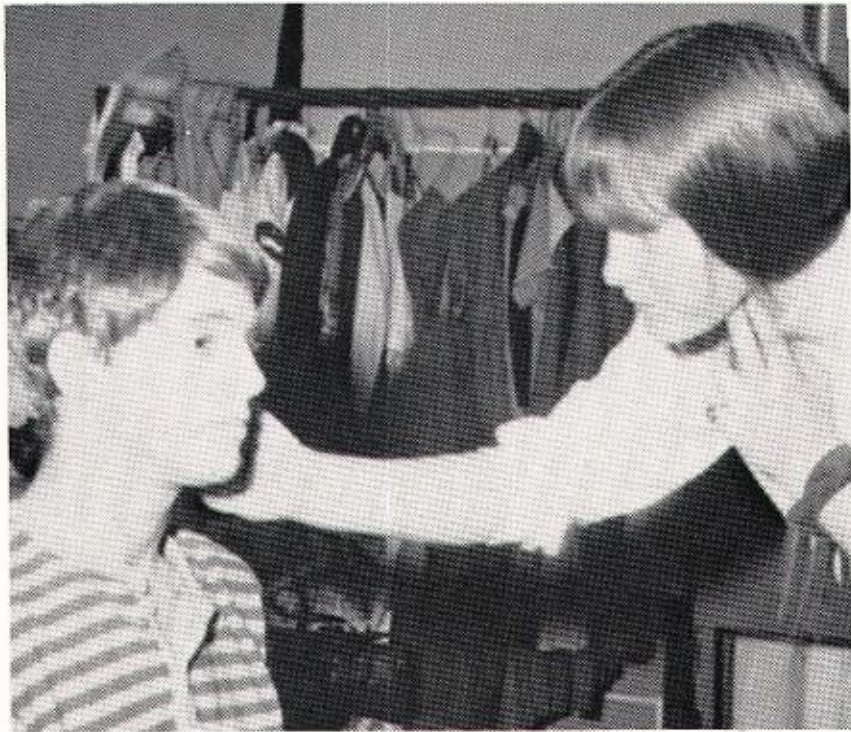

Foods and clothing teacher Miss Alexander discusses pattern layouts with Robin Dorsett and Becky Johnson.

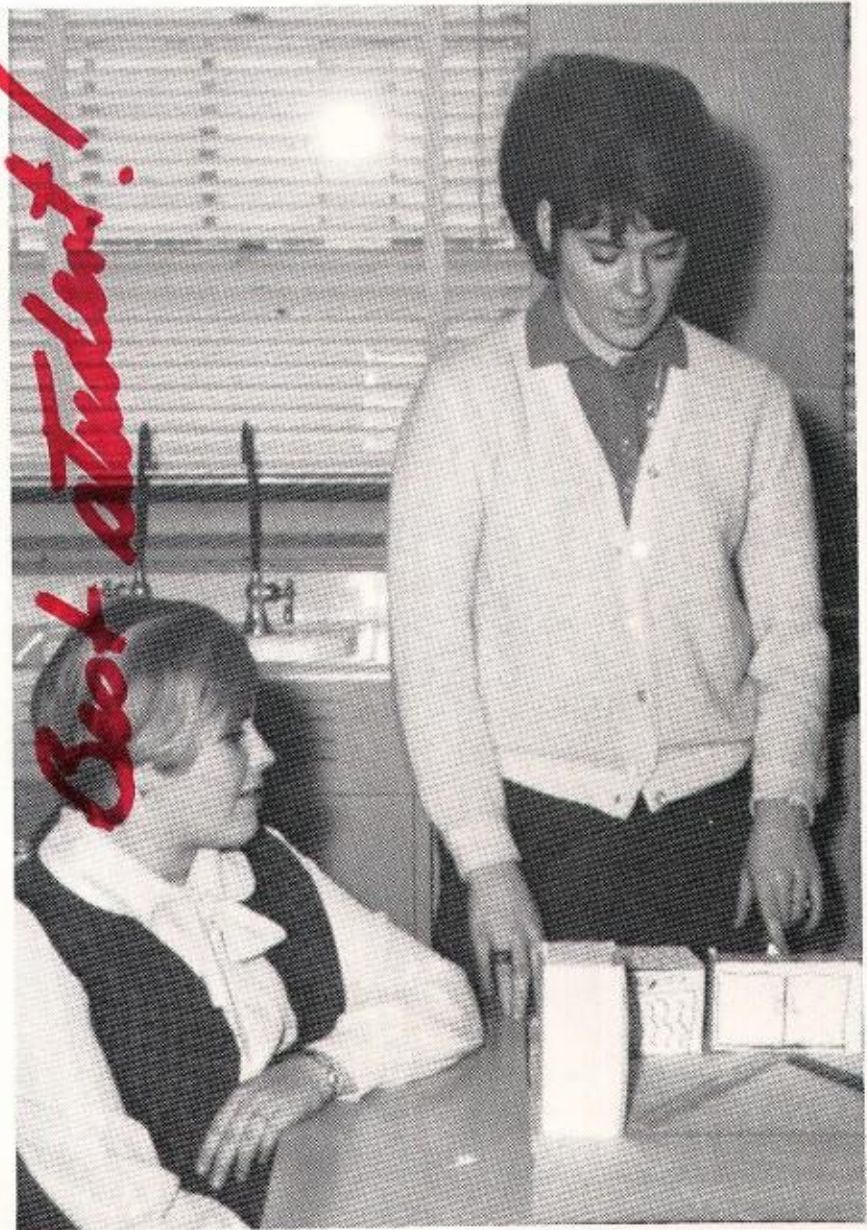

Two new courses, housing and boys' home economics, joined family living, fashion merchandising, foods and clothing, and Home Economics I and II as electives. Housing, offered for the first time as a full year course, included interior decorating. Boys' home economics taught skills of cooking and homemaking. Units on nutrition, preparation of meals, home furnishings, and child development prepared family living students for marriage. In fashion merchandising, students learned fashion buying and selling. Foods and clothing class concentrated on preparation of special dishes, etiquette, and sewing. Introductory courses for homemaking, Home Economics I and II emphasized child care, foods and nutrition, and clothing.

Art and drama, fine art electives, gave students a chance to express themselves creatively. Art students concentrated on fundamentals of art, theory, and art history. After studying theater history, drama students produced short plays.

D. Walker examines W. Elliott's make-up under bright lights in order to assure the desired skin tone for the stage.

Donning aprons, members of the boys' home economics class move into kitchens for actual cooking experience.

curriculum

Horticulture students take time to examine the numerous specimens of plant life in the school greenhouse.

Flight Commander Mark McKeen gives the order for ROTC cadets to "fall in" before beginning daily drills.

usaf offers junior rotc as boys' elective course

ROTC gave boys insight into the military profession. Air Force history, ceremony, and drills were studied. Cadets toured Shaw Air Force Base in February and attended the military ball on December 12 at Independence High School.

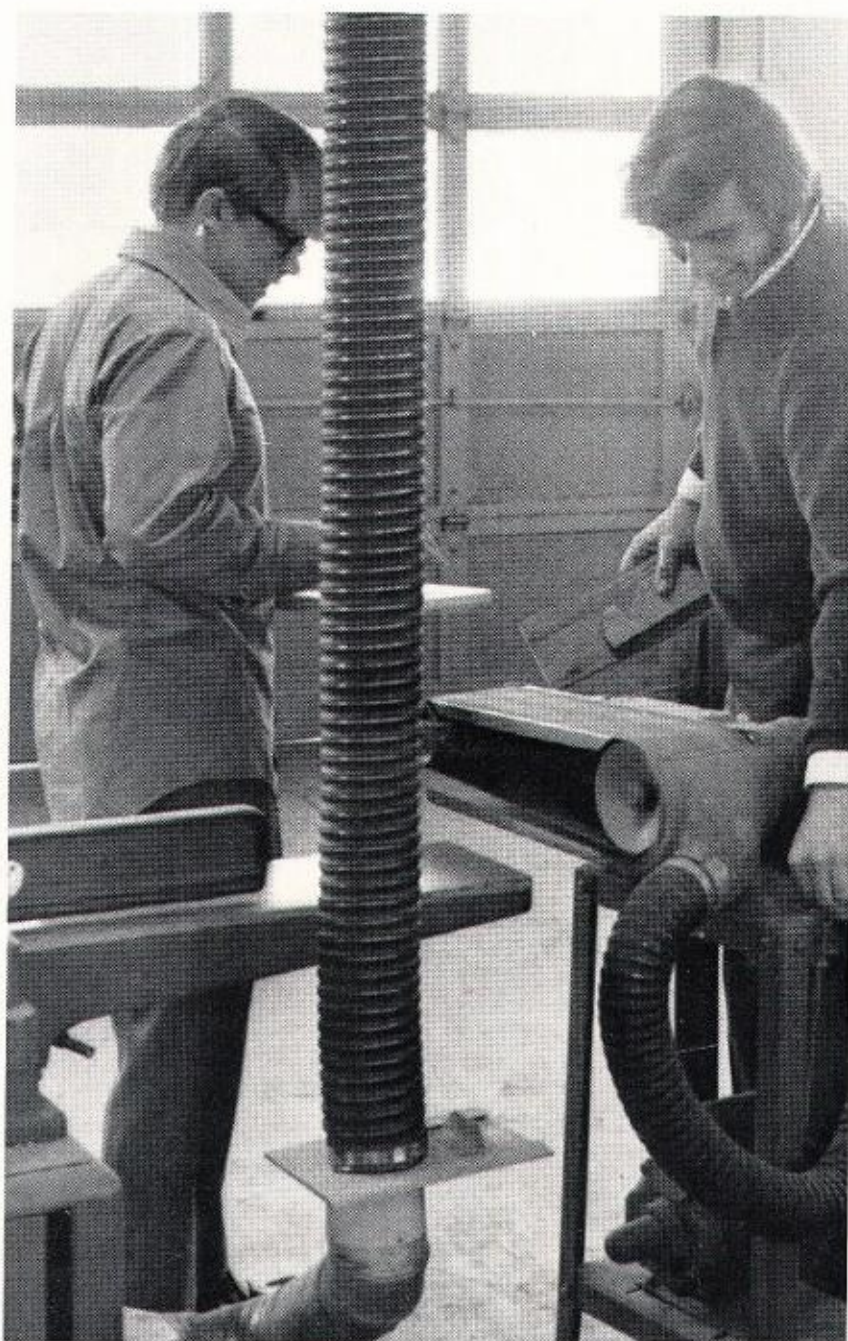

Industrial arts and machine shop offered boys an opportunity to use a variety of hand and power tools. Welding, metal finishing, and painting procedures were skills taught in auto body and fender repair.

Electronics students learned the principles of electricity. An introduction to drafting and design practices, Drafting I, included lettering, pictorial sketching, and geometric construction. Drafting II concentrated on the application of these skills.

Organized to give instruction in areas of soil and plant science, agriculture and horticulture courses introduced students to methods of growing trees, shrubs, and flowers.

Marching alongside, Captain Alfred McKay calls cadence as ROTC drill team practices on the tennis courts.

Industrial arts students Mike Seagel and Jimmy Paxton make use of the electric sander to complete projects.

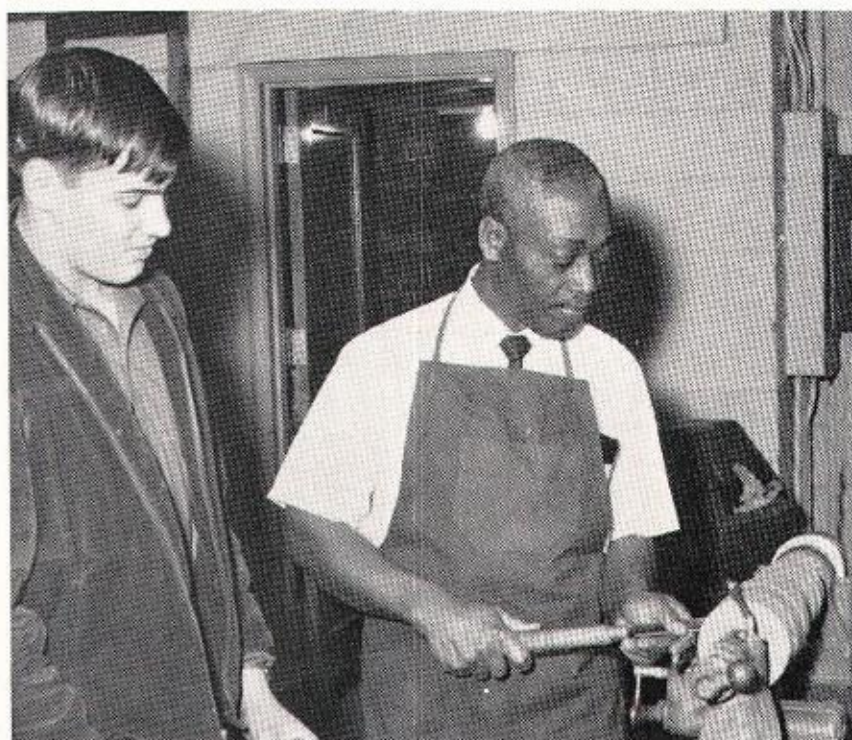

Meeting in the greenhouse, members of the horticulture class listen as Mr. Drye explains the special care and treatment involved in the growing of various houseplants.

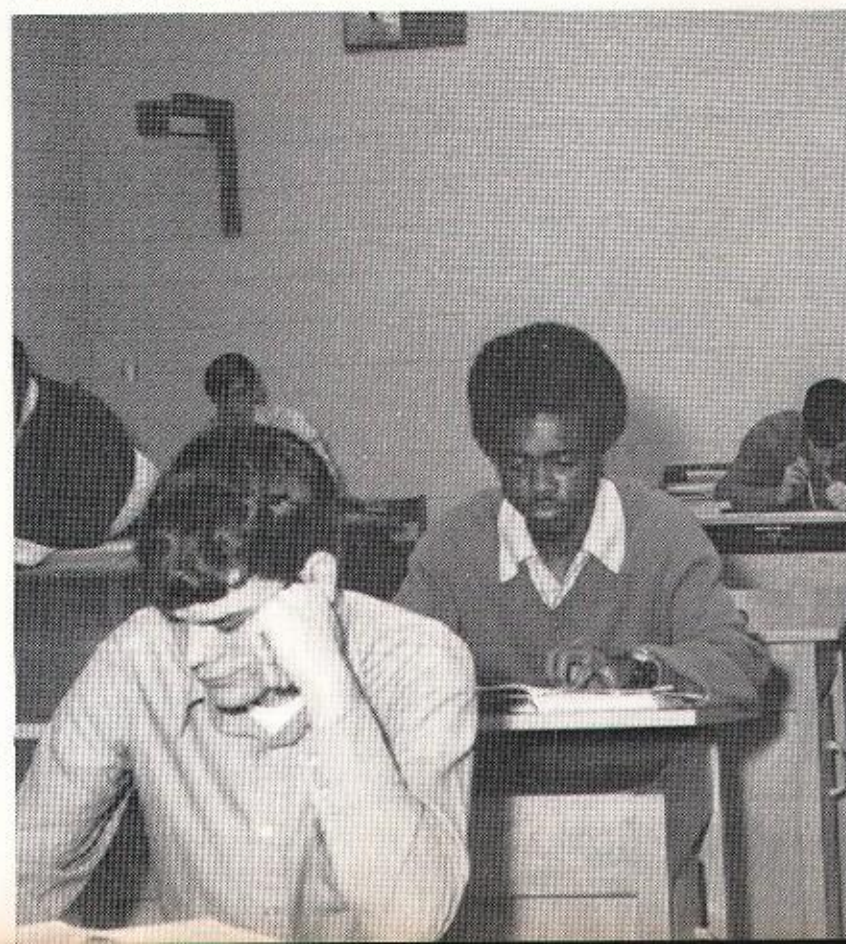

Junior Billy Clouse sands a drawer in agriculture class while other members complete their individual projects.

Benny Harkey observes as Mr. Wynn, agriculture instructor, utilizes a wood lathe and chisel to shape a lamp base.

Concentrating on electrical waves recorded on an oscilloscope are electronics students J. Nivens and J. Pettus.

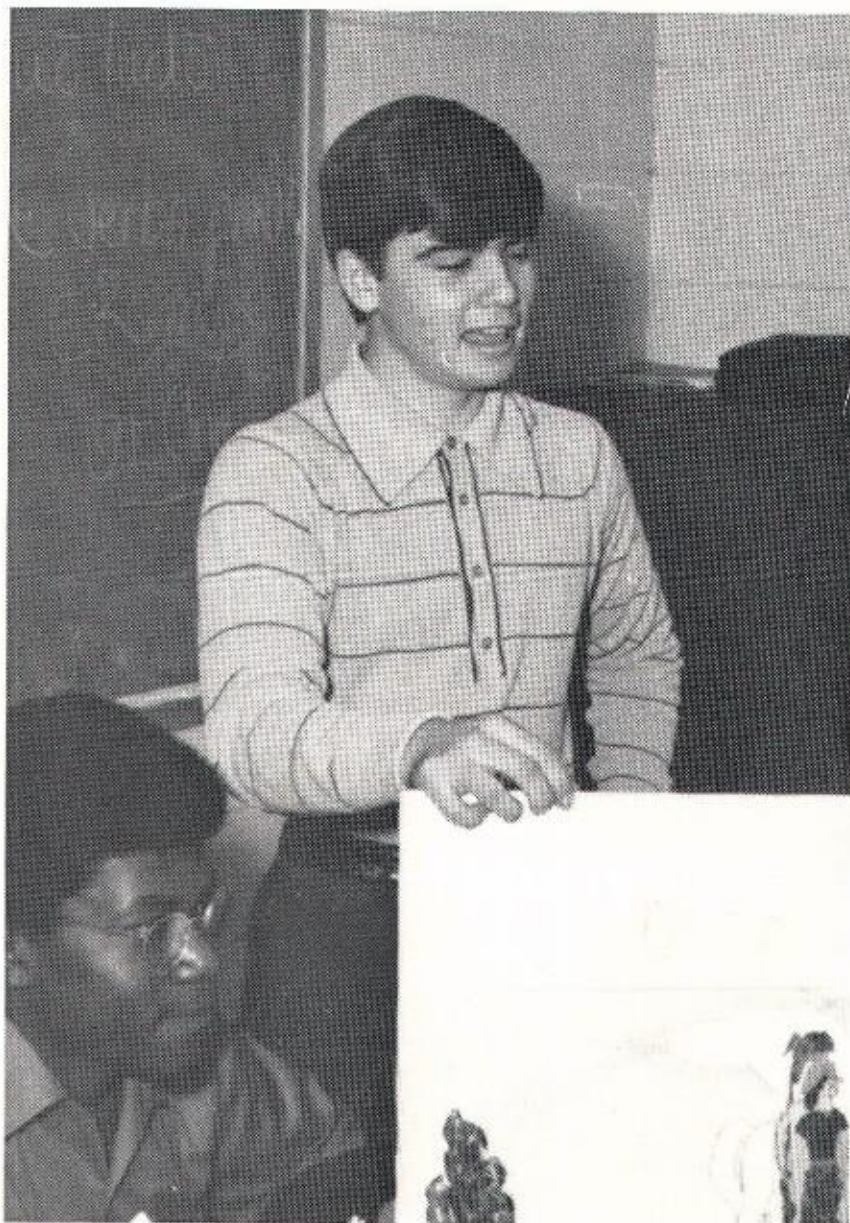

Tim Severs and Ronald Oliphant find textbooks informative while attempting to draw plans in drafting class.

Latin I teacher Miss Hodge helps Leslie Saxon and Randall Burleson translate a difficult sentence.

During a Latin II class, C. Potts and D. Brock display completed projects relating to ancient Roman culture.

Junior Libby Bishop watches intently as instructor Miss Phillips points out portraits of famous Spaniards.

chilean exchange students

French I, an introductory course into the study of the French language, emphasized pronunciation comprehension, and grammar. French II and III continued with concentration on reading and writing while French civilization from the Middle Ages through the twentieth century provided topics for study in French IV and V.

Repetition of fundamental grammar and vocabulary in reading selections and exercises acquainted Latin I students with the language. Reading materials offered comparisons of ancient and modern civilization. A continuation of the vocabulary and grammatical constructions, Latin II introduced advanced reading from Roman literature such as the Aeneid by Virgil.

As they memorized basic patterns used in everyday language, Spanish I and II students became familiar with the language in written and oral forms. Spanish III exposed students to Spanish literature and arts. Mainly reading courses, Spanish IV and V expounded on some of the most outstanding men and events in Spain.

After listening to recording, French I students memorize basic conversation patterns by repeating sentences.

Joel Murphy examines a maraca made from paper maché.

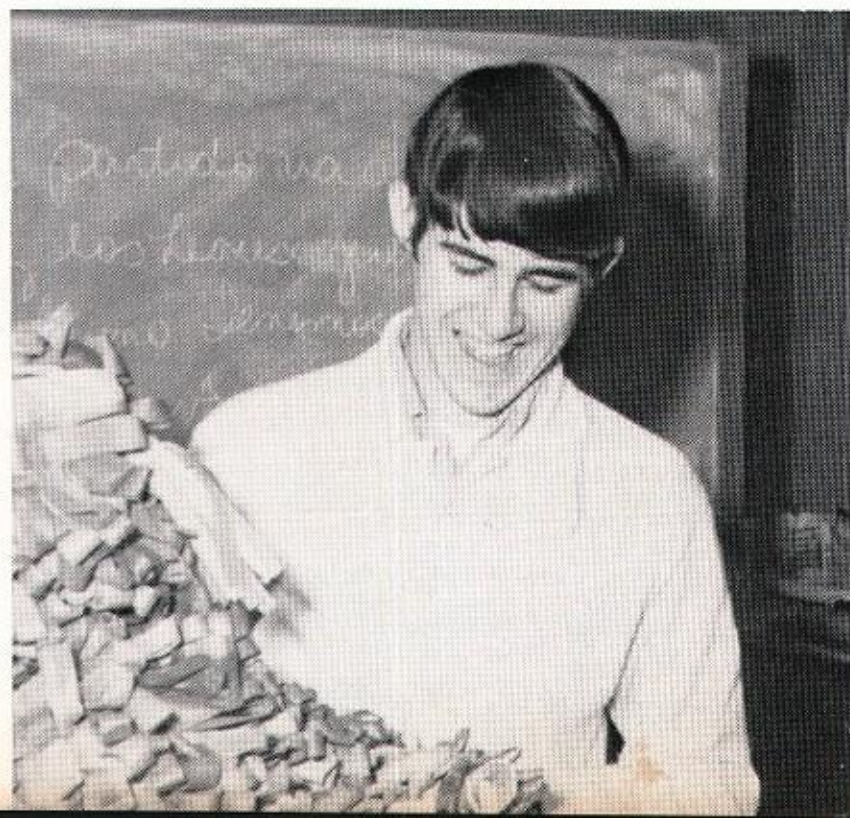

While concentrating on improving grammar and accents, Spanish students laugh at their own mistakes about a magazine article with classmates.

mathematical courses offered to interested students

Mrs. Froneberger waits to be of assistance to Ronald Perry in Algebra I after assigning problems for homework.

Using various theorems and postulates, sophomore Walter Hayes proves the congruence of four triangles.

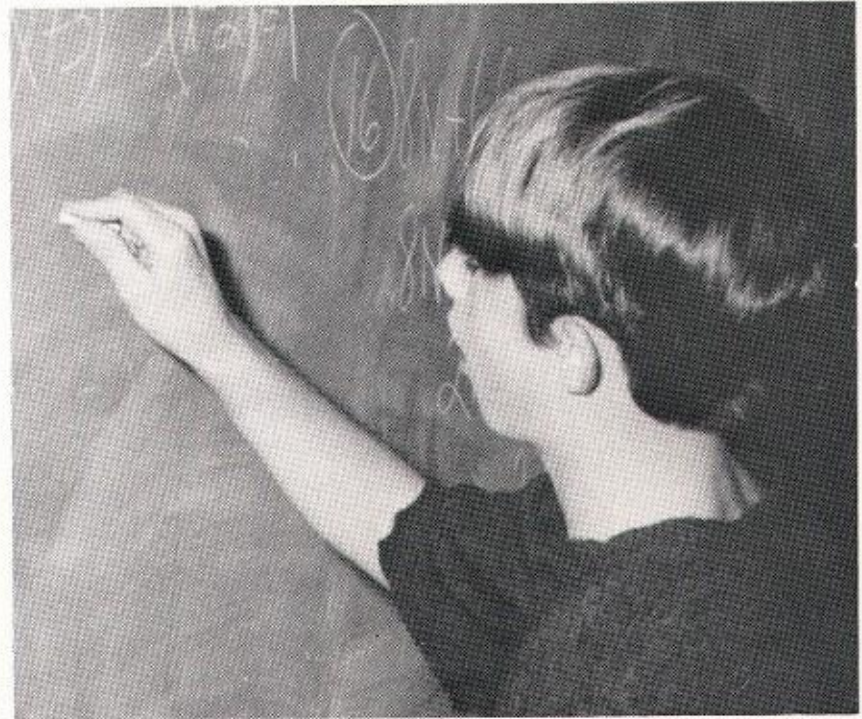

Algebra I covered the fundamental ideas of algebra and included units on symbols and sets, variables and open sentences, factoring, and graphs. A continuation of Algebra I, Algebra II introduced conics and logarithms.

A useful and practical course, business mathematics covered such topics as income tax, insurance, banking, and stocks and bonds. After completing this course, students were more able to deal with business transactions involving math.

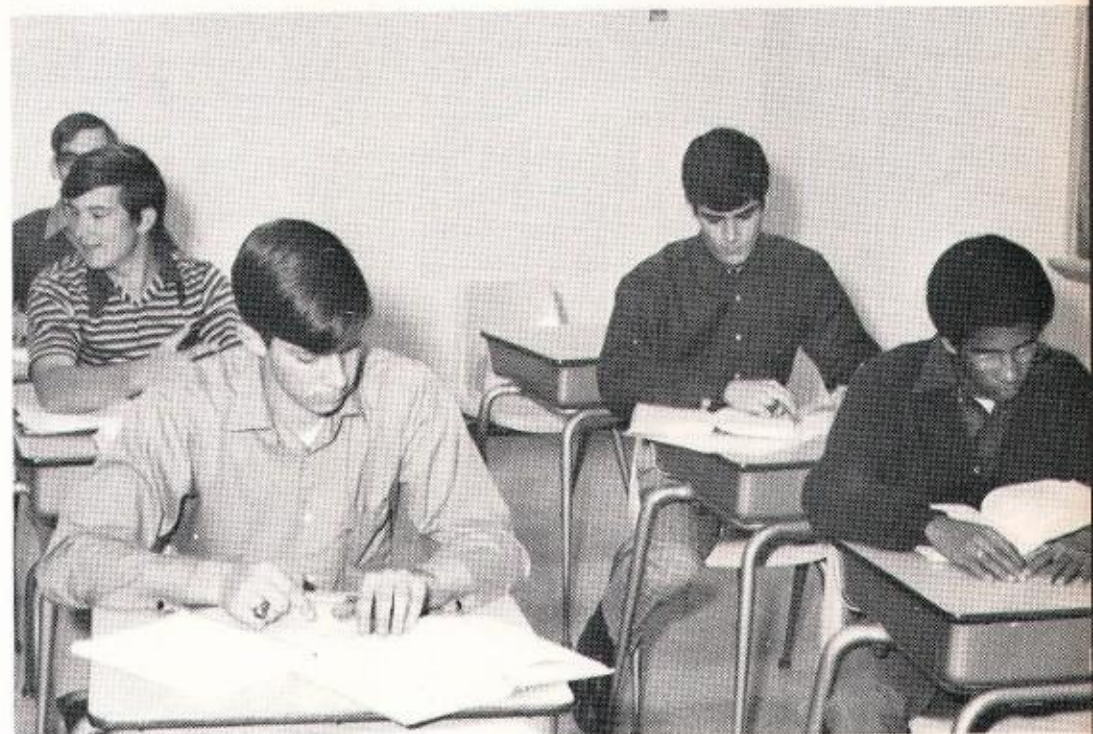

Geometry introduced skills of geometric construction, formal proofs, and indirect proofs. Intended to develop the ability to organize a problem, geometry enabled students to seek solutions through logical reasoning.

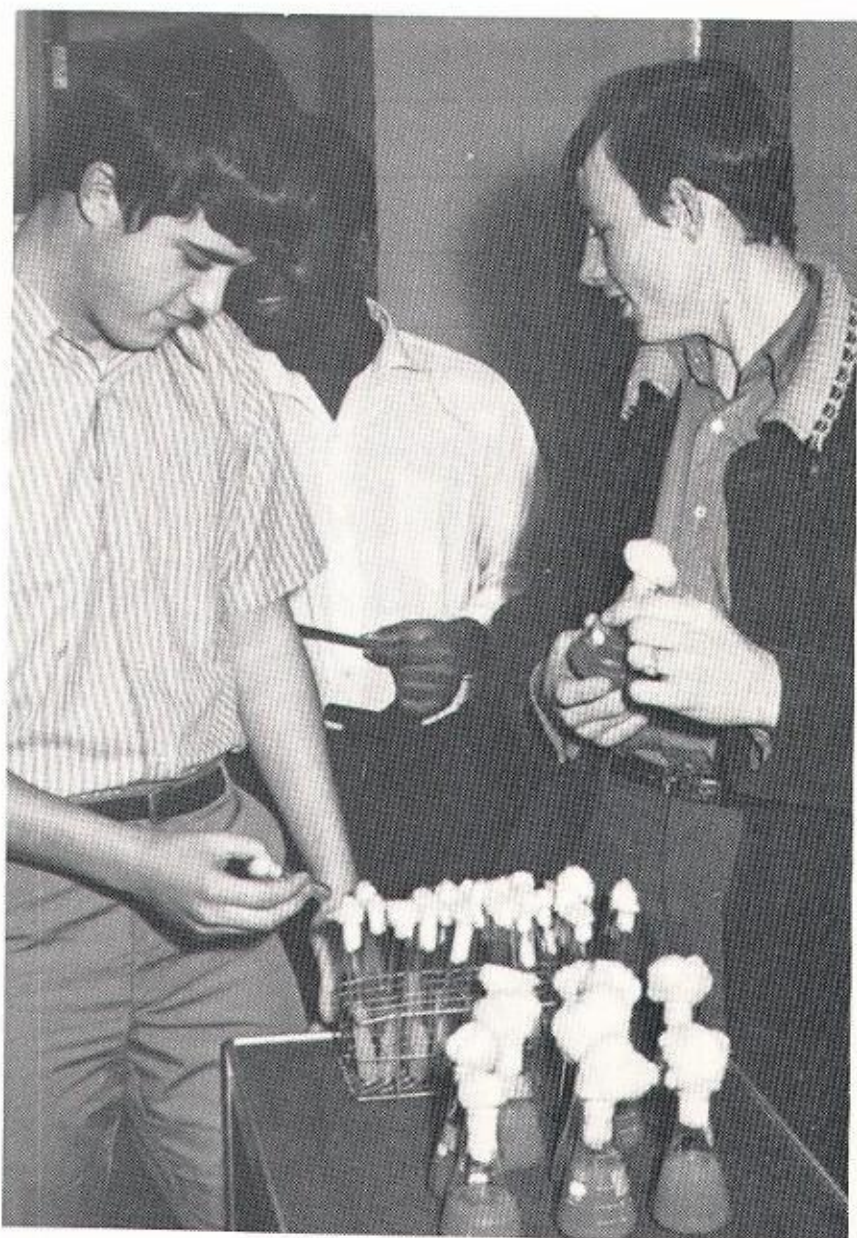

Calculus and analysis composed the highest level of mathematics. Analysis concentrated on the fundamentals of trigonometry while calculus included conic sections, limits, and real and complete numbers.

Sophomore Dewayne Manning concentrates on finding the correct values for the variable in an algebra problem.

B. Crews, G. Bennett, M. McKeen, J. Klein, and C. Cochrane review homework and textbooks before a calculus test.

chemistry II tours furman university's campus, labs

Biology I, a general study of living things, covered areas in cell biology, botany, zoology, and ecology. Labs included lessons in typing blood samples and dissecting. An advanced course, Biology II emphasized individual laboratory work and research. Completing the nature trail was a year-long project of the class.

Chemistry I helped students acquire knowledge regarding the composition, structure, and properties of matter. Experiments acquainted students with laboratory equipment and techniques. Encouraged to do independent study, Chemistry II students reinforced basic concepts. On a trip to Furman students attended a lecture and toured.

Physics, helped students understand the world. The primary concern of this course was the analysis and description of energy.

Sophomores in Mrs. Lavalley's Biology I class divide into groups during a study of parasites and saprophytes.

Observing a model of a pair of lungs, Larry Hunter gains knowledge concerning the human respiratory system.

Through experimentation and classroom studies, Chemistry II provides June Brotherton and Lisa Marks with the necessary experience in chemical and physical reactions.

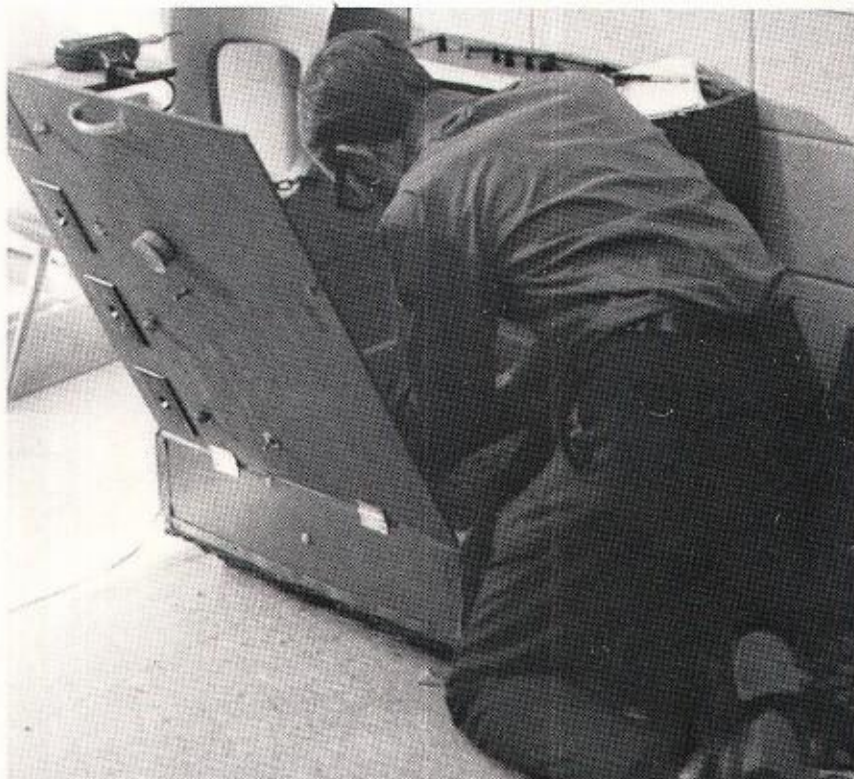

Biology I students place genetic problems on board.

Senior Lisa Marks discusses courses in chemistry offered at Furman University with Dr. Patterson, a professor.

Rechecking circuits, Billy Crews tries to find the problem with his physics project, a linear accelerator.

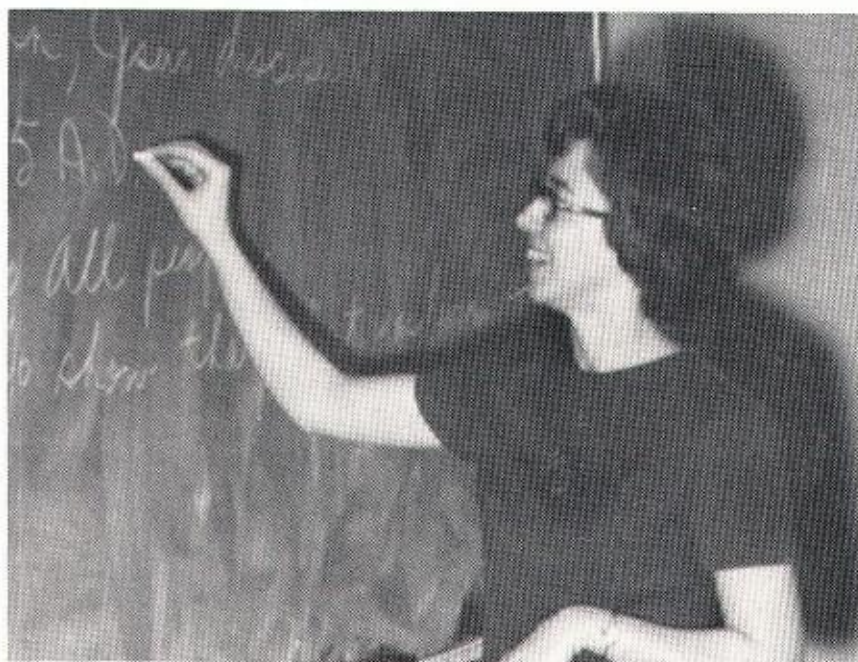

Junior Karen Masters demonstrates the startling effect of direct contact with the Van Der Graff generator.

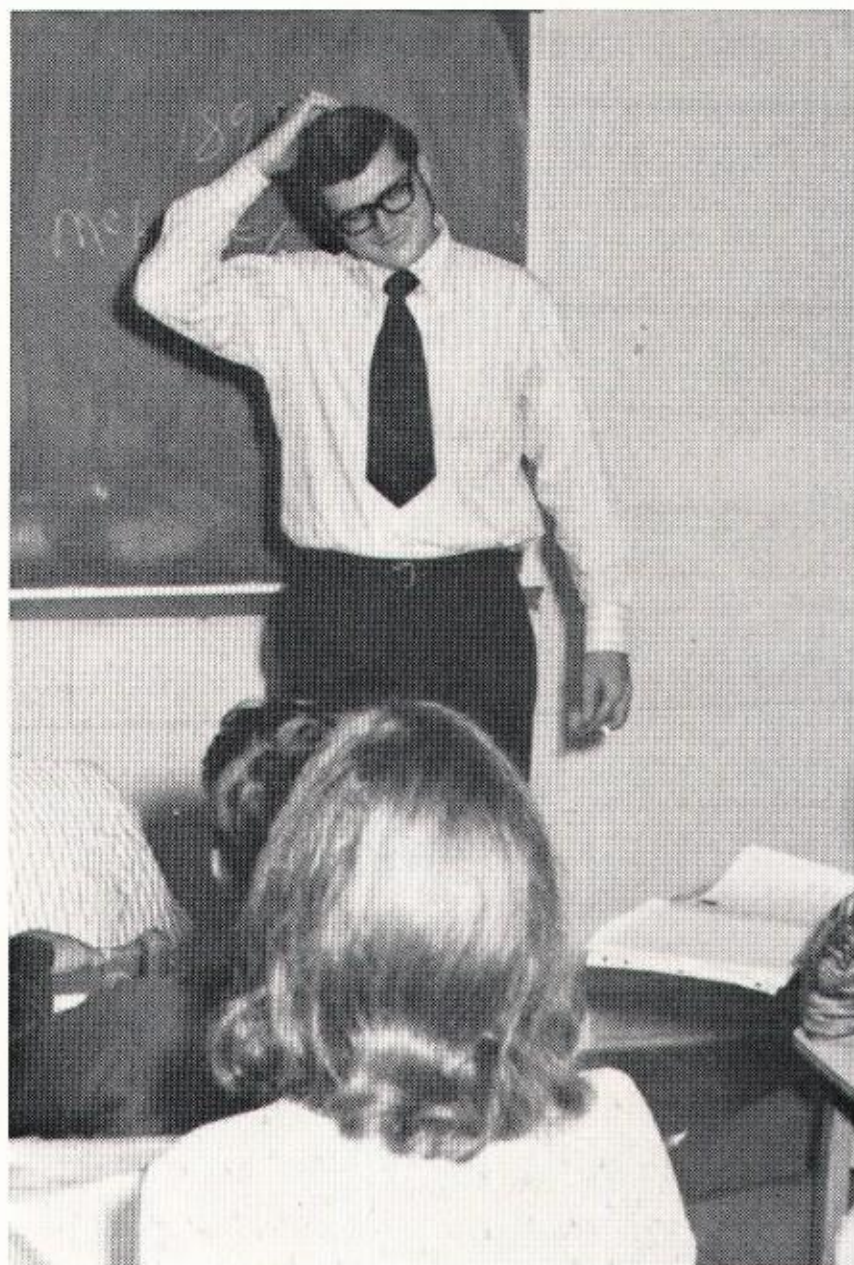

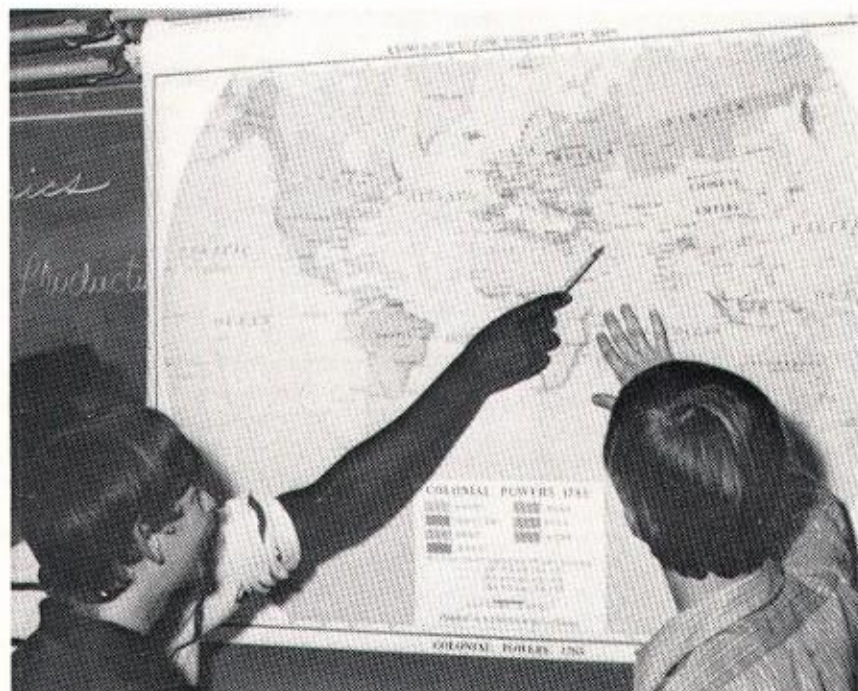

Cathryn Woods, Kathy Parr, and Marty Prince explain different phases of mental illnesses through skits.

Mrs. Teague reviews important points of previous lesson before beginning the day's discussion in Bible I. Studying the Middle East crisis, Ralph Carr, Robbie Swaney and Robert Black locate the countries involved.

Mr. Webb, U.S. history teacher, pauses during a lecture on the Gay 90's and the colorful characters of that time. World history students Jimmy Garrison, John Deal, David Whitley, and Randy Cross listen attentively to lecture.

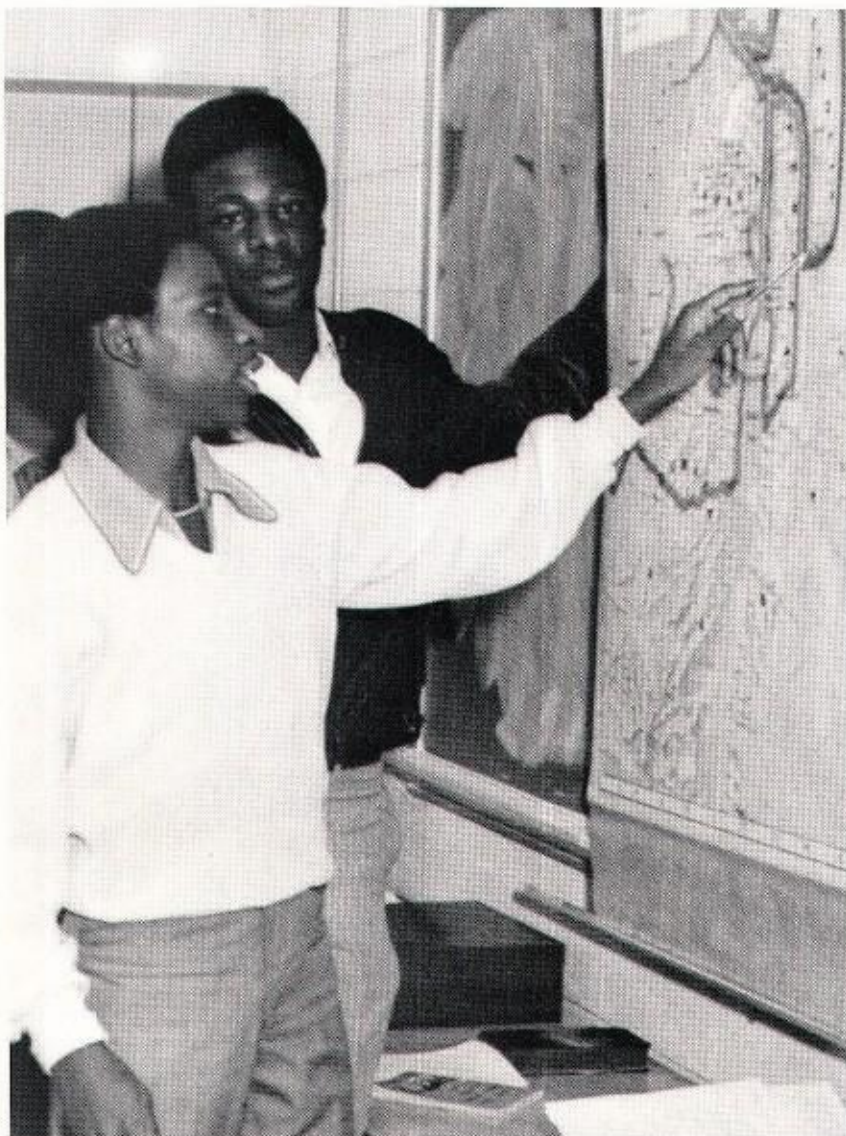

african culture reveals aspects of black history

Addie Sadler, George Metcalf, and Sandi Bass use a commentary to explain the meaning of a Bible passage.

Using a Biblical map, Bible students Gary Davis and Alexander Young locate sites of early Christian churches.

African culture, Bible I and II, economics, psychology, sociology, United States history, and world history composed the social studies curriculum. These courses informed students of their heritage and enabled them to understand the world situation.

African culture included aspects of black history. Bible I covered the teachings of Christ while Bible II surveyed the Old Testament. Causes of depressions and inflation were explained in economics. Psychology covered such topics as drugs, alcohol, mental illness, and social problems. Sociology students studied community, city, state, and federal governments. United States history covered America from colonization through the space age. Promoting an awareness of past civilizations, world history presented life from past to present.

Playing a tape concerning activities in America, sophomore Doug Joy terminates his world history class report.

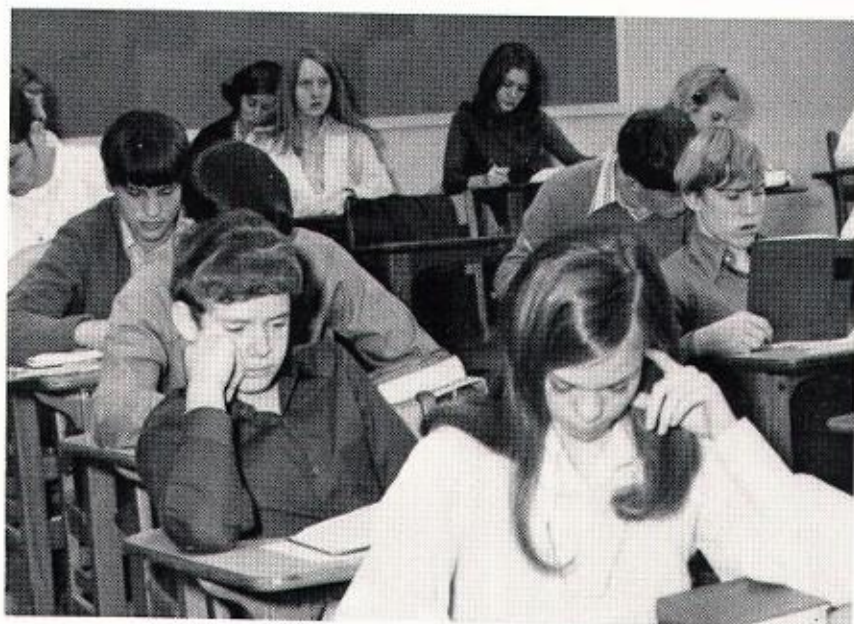

english students do research, write term papers

English 10 emphasized reading in all types. Writing techniques and usage were vital parts of the course. Students used these techniques to write themes. The course included Shakespeare's Julius Caesar.

American literature composed part of English 11. Techniques in writing enabled students to organize thoughts concisely. A research unit helped students write research papers.

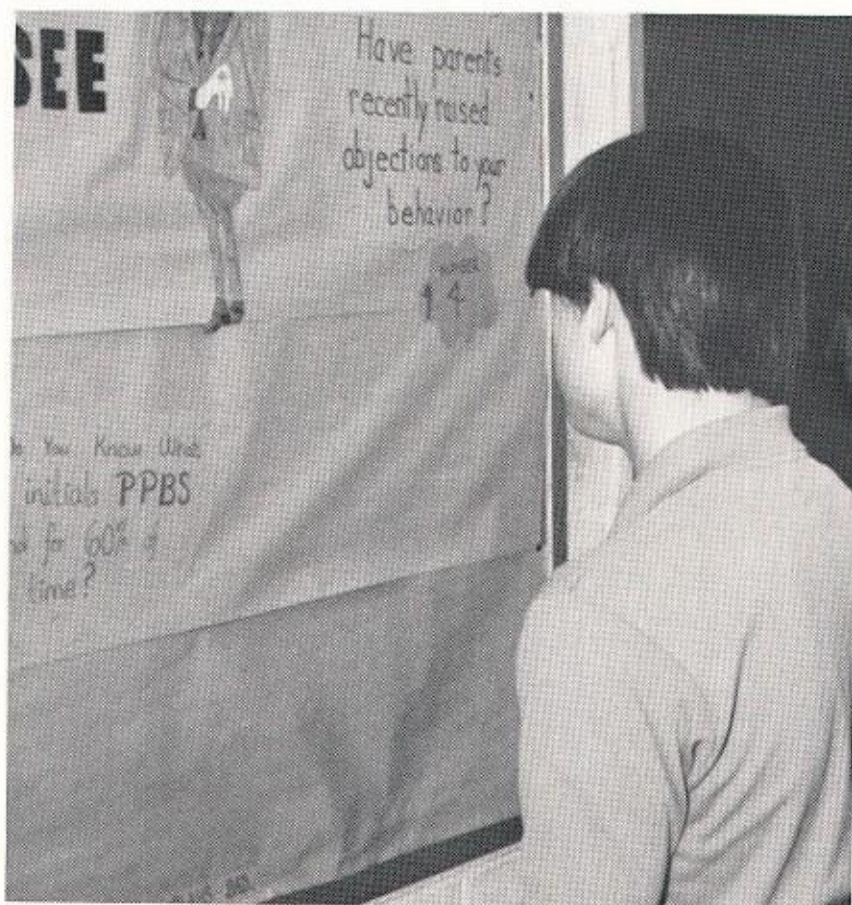

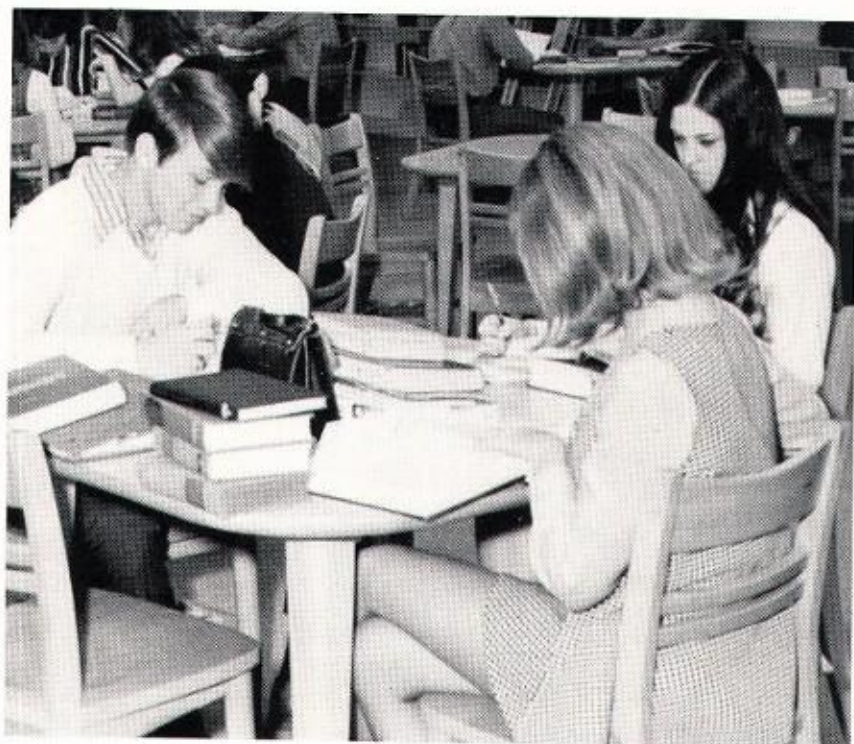

English 12 students studied English literature. Beowulf, Canterbury Tales, Sir Gawain and the Green Knight, and several Shakespearean plays were part of this course. Research papers related to English authors and literature composed an important part of the year's study.

Advanced placement offered seniors a chance to study Russian literature in addition to English literature. Themes, discussions, reports, and a research paper offered opportunities for perfecting skills in writing and speaking.

business classes impart beneficial clerical skills

Business courses offered by the Commercial Department included bookkeeping, data processing, general business, general office practice, shorthand, and typing. All of these courses combined to give students the knowledge of business in all aspects.

Bookkeeping emphasized the applications of bookkeeping principles to business problems and decisions. Students preparing to be accountants received a firm foundation from this course.

General business and general office practice gave students a better knowledge of the business world. These subjects launched students effectively into an atmosphere of regular working conditions.

Shorthand provided pupils with the necessary speed and accuracy required in any type of business operation.

Typing I conveyed information to help in practical office work or home usage. Typing II added additional skills in typing more difficult business forms.

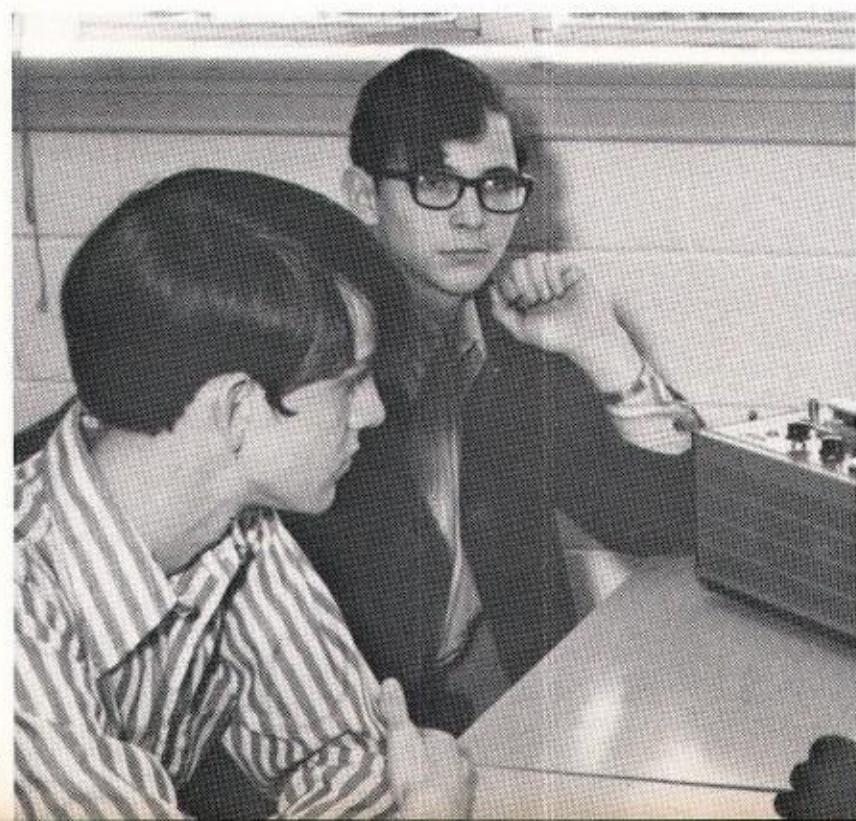

Making carbon copies, Marion Fuller and other members in general office practice prepare to type manuscripts.

Under the home economics cooperative occupations program, M. Wallace works at The Little People's School.

Cooperative home economics occupations gave girls an opportunity to work in businesses related to areas of home economics. Child care centers, department stores, dry cleaners, and interior decorators employed these students.

Seniors interested in business careers benefited from cooperative office occupations. Until ready for employment, students entered either the clerical, stenographic, or data processing program to perfect the necessary skills.

Distributive education included studies in wholesaling, retailing, advertising, displaying, and selling. D.E. students attended school in the morning for required courses and worked for an approved business establishment in the afternoon. Industrial cooperative economics students learned skills in two periods of classroom instruction each day and then utilized these skills on the job. delegates guide parliamentary procedure classes

During the summer many students had an opportunity to attend various conferences and schools. Girls' State delegates met in Greensboro while Boys' State delegates met in Winston-Salem. For a week these representatives learned about government and its functions as they heard many interesting speakers. Wild Acres, held in Huntersville, provided a time for students over the state to meet and discuss important issues of today. Each person attending Governor's School studied in a particular field for seven weeks at Salem College. During this time each became familiar with the twentieth century developments in his field.

1970 homecoming activities

After much planning by the inter-club council, the 1970 homecoming activities proved to be an exciting success. "They Shoot Horses, Don't They?" served as the theme for the entire week. On November 5 the social committee sponsored the homecoming dance. The "Flares" provided musical entertainment. Spirit reached a peak as students, teachers, and administrators dressed for Tacky Day. During the pep rally, students shouted their support for the team. That night the Indians fought the Mustangs at Memorial Stadium. Half-time activities included presenting the sponsors and crowning a new queen. When the final gun sounded, the Indians had triumphed 21-19.

records fall as team places second in conference

Junior pole vaulter Ralph Bell clears 12' 6" for first place in the sectional track meet at Myers Park Stadium.

Ronnie Ridout makes intensive efforts as he strives for distance in the running broad jump during the sectional meet.

Winning four of their five dual meets, losing only to state champion Myers Park, the Indian trackmen had an impressive season. Participating in thirteen meets, the Indians finished second in the conference.

School records were set by David Helms, who leaped 22 feet 6 inches in the running broad jump, and Harry Hilewitz, who threw the shotput 54 feet 7/8 inch. Junior Carl Roach missed the record in the discus throw by only seven inches. Other outstanding trackmen were Ralph Bell, Ken Wheeler, and Tim Loftin.

Harry Hilewitz strains for every extra inch in the shotput throw, an event in which he set a new school record.

yount, tucker lead golfers in district tournament

Sophomore Larry Tucker follows through on a shot which will enable him to obtain a better position for the putt.

West golfers in the spring of 1970 posted a successful season. Impressive victories brought recognition for the team members. The team finished second in their conference, sixth in the Southwestern 4-A, and fifth in the N.C.H.S.A.A. district playoffs played at Cedarwood Country Club.

Led by juniors Larry Yount and sophomore Larry Tucker, who each shot 75 to share for the best round of the year, the golfers gained much experience in match play. The young team that consisted of mostly sophomores and juniors finished with a 7-8 record.

In the district tournament held at Cedarwood Golf Course, junior Larry Yount begins an iron shot to the green.

netters learn technique, ability through practice

Junior Bobby Plyler shows good form, which was acquired by much practice, on an overhand serve during match.

Under the leadership of Coach Donnie Lemmond, the Indian netters gained much knowledge. Long hours spent in practice aided the players in acquiring the ability, skill, and fundamentals necessary to win their matches. Composed of all juniors except for one senior and one sophomore, the Indians finished with a 2-10 record.

As the season progressed, the players showed much improvement. George Metcalf, Steve Bostian, Randy McCall, and Bobby Plyler maintained positions as top members of the team.

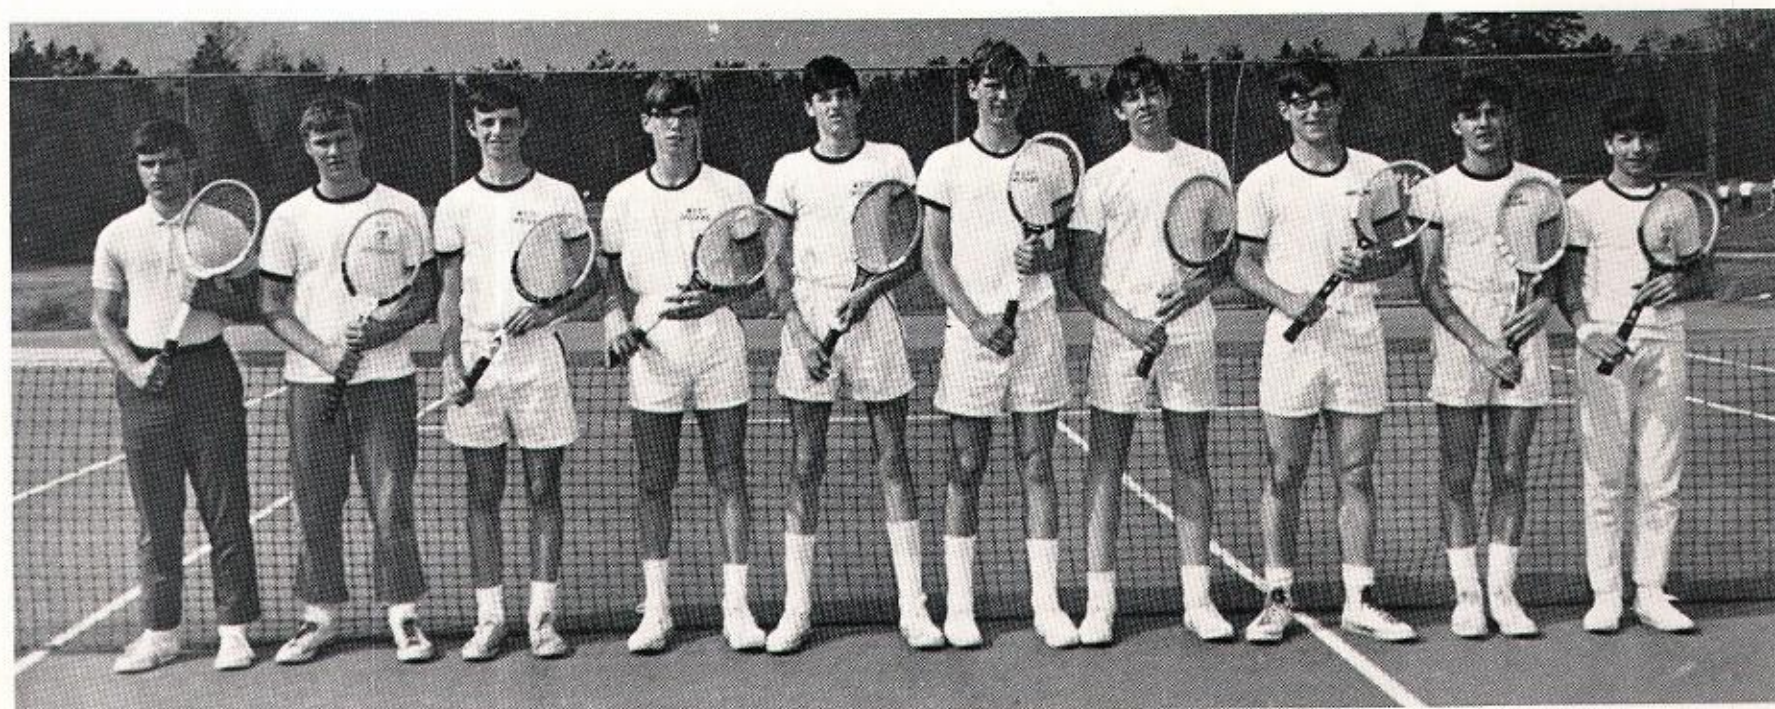

Junior netter David Mashburn follows through on his forehand in a tennis match held on the Indian home courts.

Indian netter Steve Bostian attempts to return a hard hit ball with a skillful backhand during practice.

spirited cheerleaders support teams through season

Under the direction of Miss Phillips and Miss Mahaffey the selection of the 1971 cheerleaders took place in late September. Qualification requirements were scholastic achievement, good citizenship, character, and school spirit. This opportunity enabled each girl to use her physical agility in preparing her original cheer, which she presented to a group of faculty and students. The committee chose nine varsity and five junior varsity cheerleaders from the thirty finalists.

Head Debbie Cashion and co-head Lou Ann Bizzell led the squad through the football and basketball seasons. They were responsible for organizing practice, creating new cheers, and preparing for pep rallies.

Meeting every Tuesday, the Art Club began the year by electing Theresa Baker, Mike Godfrey, and Judy Houston as a committee to steer the club. Members visited McDonald Art Gallery and the Mint Museum in October. They were in charge of the window for Shoney's on Freedom Drive. They depicted the "Twelve Days of Christmas" in paintings, backing them with black felt. Also in December they block-printed tissue paper and wrapped gifts. They made plans for a craft shop for students during the second semester. The Art Club held an art sale and show in the spring.

M. Godfrey and T. Baker work on window for Shoney's, which placed third in the competition with other schools.

bible members make flowers for charlotte hospital

Bible Club consisted of those students taking Bible and others interested in serving the community. For their first project, they went to Charlotte Community Hospital at Halloween. Wearing colorful costumes, members took candy to the elderly patients. Impressed by the lack of outside attention given the patients, the group met weekly in November to make crepe paper flowers and vases for dinner trays to present to these people. At Christmas the club addressed cards to local soldiers stationed in Viet Nam. For a belated Christmas and New Year's party, the group went to Shakey's Pizza Parlor on Pineville Road on January 7.

Juniors Libby Bishop and Libbi Abernathy demonstrate the construction of paper flowers to the other club members.

Co-editor Steve Bostian and managing editor Ray Waddell discuss plans for a future edition of the paper.

Typist Emilie Kennedy talks over her assignments with adviser Atnip as student teacher Green corrects stories.

Working during fifth period, advertising manager Steve Craven and junior varsity sports editor George Metcalf skim other publications for innovative ideas.

bow and arrow staff add

Publishing a monthly newspaper, the Bow and Arrow staff informed the students about school activities. The paper included features, news of sports, clubs, alumni items, advertisements, and editorials. A question-answer service, "Ask Pocahontas," was a new feature. Also, M.G.M. and 20th Century Fox included the staff on their movie previewing lists. The Bow and Arrow received the International First Place Award in the Quill and Scroll 1969 Critical Newspaper Service.

Classes met daily to teach staffers correct journalistic principles. After having served a year as reporters, the senior members became editors for their second year on the staff. Membership requirements were a "B" average in English and approval by the adviser.

bus drivers work extra during half-day schedule

Bus drivers fulfilled their responsibilities by providing transportation, by keeping their buses in orderly, clean, and good mechanical condition, and by promoting highway safety. They were required to fill out weekly and monthly reports consisting of mileage and attendance information. With the half-day schedule during the first month of school, drivers accepted extra routes, serving high schools and junior highs in the morning and elementary schools in the afternoons. Buses carried students from Tuckaseegee, Allenbrook, Oaklawn, Berryhill, Paw Creek Annex, and Paw Creek Elementaries, and Wilson and Coulwood junior highs.

Dismissed after fifth period, bus drivers make last minute engine checks before leaving on afternoon routes.

campus life club joins other schools at halloween

Campus Life was an active club that strived to show young people the Christian way to enjoy life. The season was started with a getting-acquainted Burger Bash at Moore's Park Community Center in September. City-wide projects included the Haunted House, the year's big money-raising project, sponsored successfully October 27-31; a party for George Washington's birthday; and a Wild Goose Chase. Energetic members took a pleasure trip to Boone, North Carolina, during the Thanksgiving holidays. They also attended "The Living End" which was a convention of the Southern Area, held in Gatlinburg, Tennessee, December 26-29. The Southern Area Conference was conducted for six days in June.

club takes orders, sells tom wat show case items

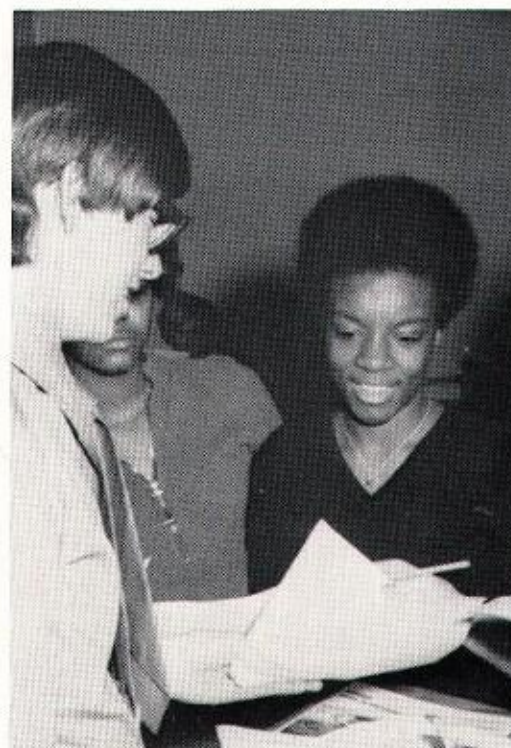

Meeting regularly on the first Tuesday of each month, the Cooperative Office Occupations Club strove to prepare members for employment in the business world. The money raising activity of the year was selling items in the Tom Wat Show Case kits. Members took orders until Thanksgiving for products such as perfume and small tool sets, each costing about two dollars. Completed before Christmas, sales totaled about seven hundred dollars for the club. This money bought cookies, cokes, and stuffed animals that were taken to children at the Orthopedic Hospital in Gastonia on January 9. It was also used for the C.O.O. banquet, held in April, to which members took their employers. An additional use for the money was a contribution to the Wright-Foster Scholarship Fund.

commercial club members send cards to viet nam

Chrissie Pays, Rachel Deese, and secretary Jan Jones discuss accuracy of information typed for Commercial Club.

Commercial Club membership was open to any student who was taking or had previously taken typing, shorthand, bookkeeping, general office practice, or other business courses not connected with the work programs. A major project of the group was the addressing of Christmas cards to soldiers. During the second semester, the club planned programs emphasizing proper business techniques and factors for success in the business world. To inform the students of its activities, members kept a bulletin board in Room 112.

club learns skill of judging soil, timber, livestock

Horticulture students and club members Gary Payne and Kim Pittman listen as adviser Mr. Drye explains grafting.

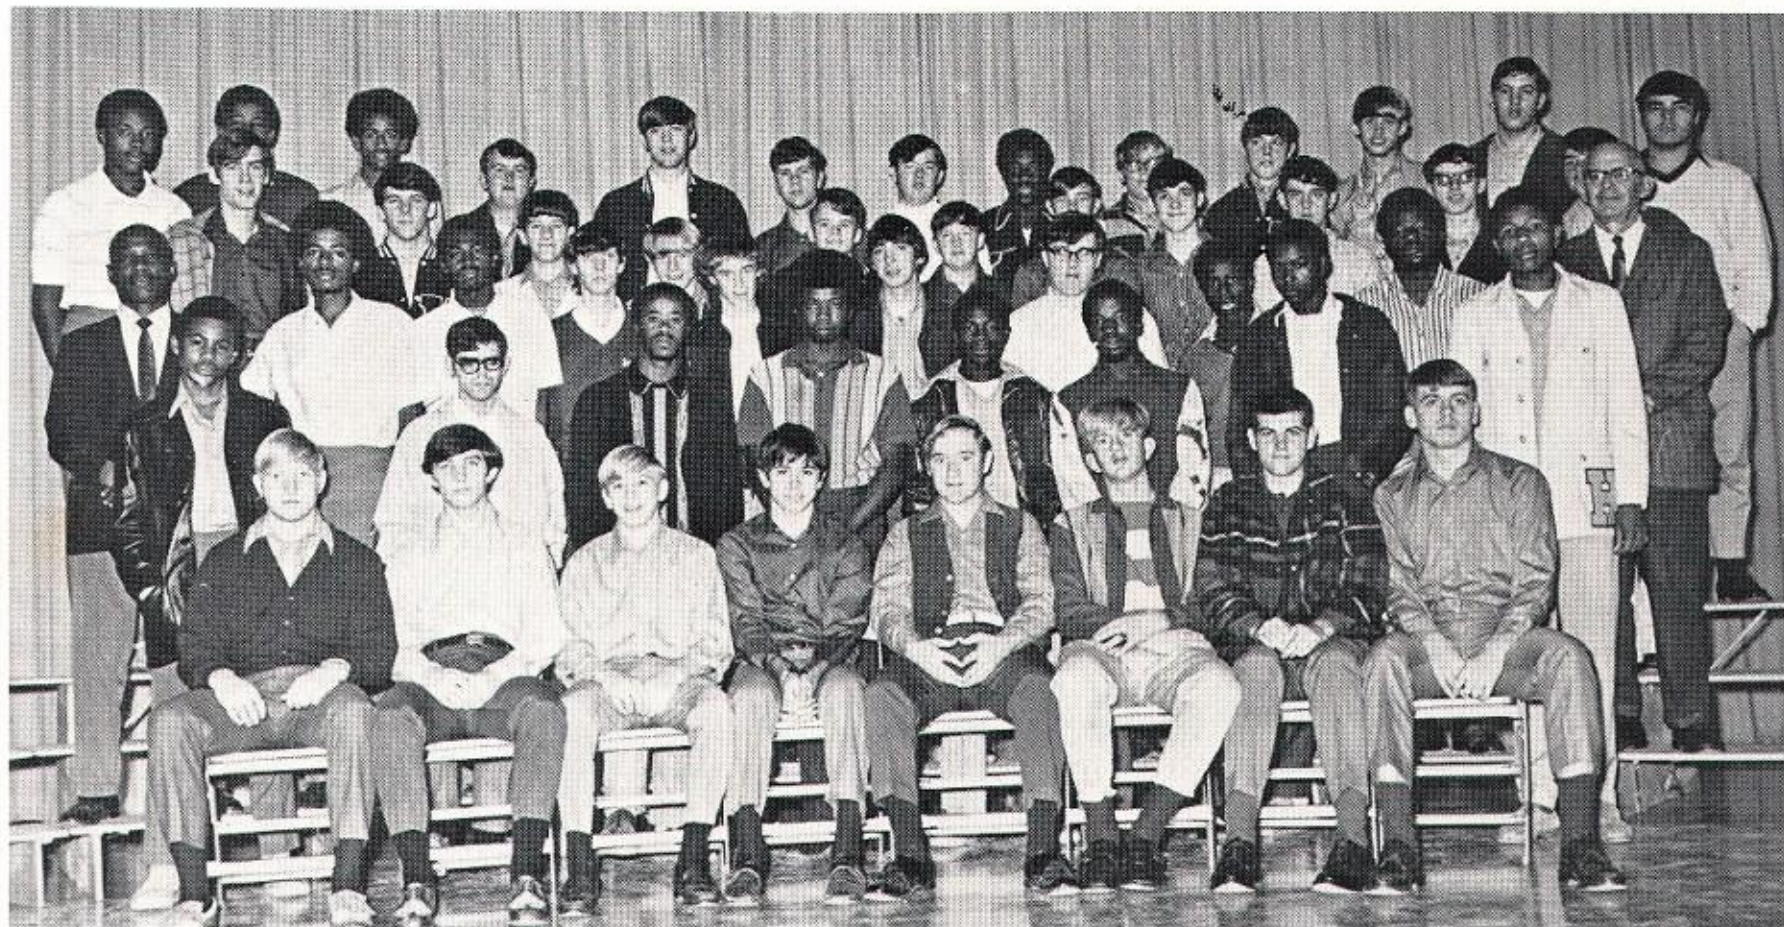

Future Farmers of America was a nationwide organization of students studying vocational agricultural subjects. Its main purposes were to develop leadership and participate in worthy undertakings towards the improvement of agriculture. Members of this chapter participated in a number of contests sponsored by the national organization. From their studies they were able to identify tools and hardware, to judge trees, and to determine soil properties in three of these contests. In other competition they appraised both dairy cattle and livestock and explained qualities of these animals.

Much excitement ruled in the Distributive Education Club when the District Leadership Conference took place in the auditorium on November 3. During the conference the club chapter held a Miss DECA contest as well as a job interview contest, for which the representatives were interviewed at Southern Bell employment on November 2. New district officers were also elected. West students took part in all of these activities. A supper followed in the cafeteria. For Christmas, distributive education members had a luncheon at the Open Kitchen. In March the club participated in the national celebration of DE month.

future teachers guide parents at pta open house

Guides K. Alexander and L. Belcher discuss directions with Miss Moody in the front hall at the first PTA meeting.

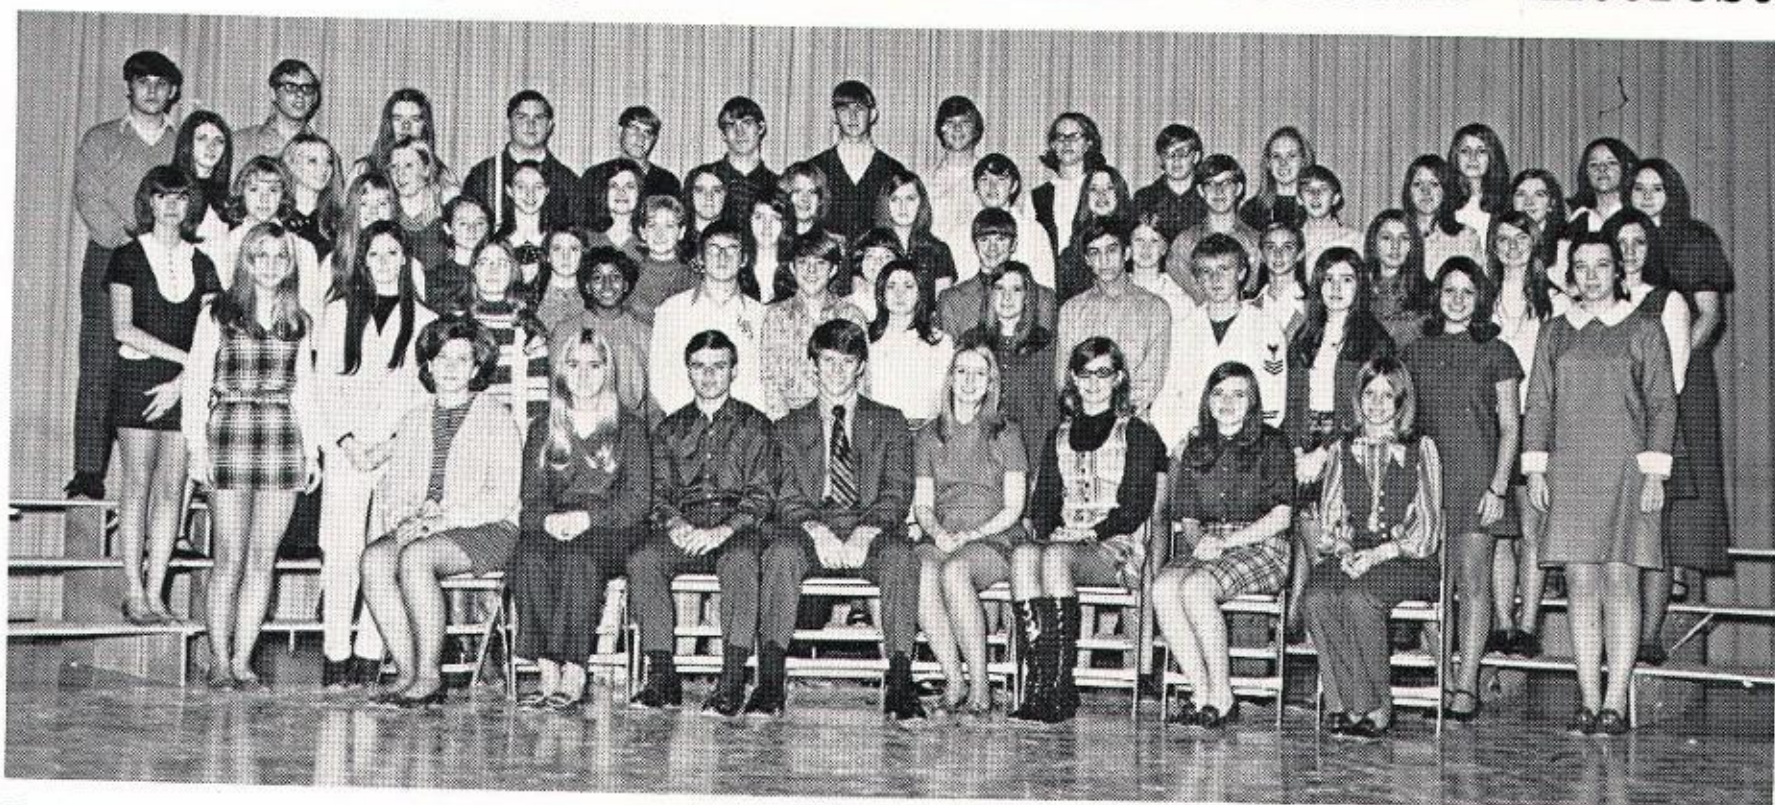

Future Teachers of America served as guides at the PTA Open House in October. They acted as baby-sitters for children of adults who attended night school which met twice weekly and as teacher aides. Members sold an all-purpose cleaner in November. When this product arrived they completed their money-raising project for the year. At the January meeting the FTA made plans to assist at the Bethlehem Center by helping elementary students with homework and other similar tasks throughout the second semester. This experience gave them an opportunity to serve others and to prepare for future work with children.

Spanish Club members began to plan their projects of the year after they elected officers in September. Assisting an Interclub Council project, they collected money for the Danny Thomas Drive against leukemia on November 29. The group sold tickets for a Spanish buffet, which was held at McQuay Memorial Presbyterian Church on December 14. After dinner they broke a piñata filled with Christmas candies. The club welcomed two Chilean exchange students who were in Charlotte for a two-month stay. Members had a party for Soledad Olivaris and Viviana Miranda on February 22. A continuing project of the club was to attain further understanding of the Spanish language and countries.

latin club members hold picnic for first meeting

Planning a picnic for first year students, Latin II students held the first Latin Club meeting. The group spent Sunday afternoon, October 25, at Bryant Park. Although the weather was bad, the rain failed to disrupt the picnic. They moved and prepared the food under a shelter in the park. Club members elected officers in class on November 17. At the November meeting, they planned a Christmas project and party. Taking small gifts from the club, five members visited patients at the Charlotte Community Hospital on December 17. These students joined the club at Shoney's to eat supper. Latin Club sponsored a banquet in the spring.

clubbers achieve goal with copier from memorials

Library Club members continued to manage the Gaylord book-charging system, installed last year. Clubbers kept interesting seasonal or literary features in the display case. Following brief campaigns, the group selected officers. They aided students in the use of the library's new copier, bought from the memorial fund for Larry Laye, a former Library Club president. This equipment enabled students to use materials which could not be removed from the room. On December 6 they went to the Charlotte Memorial Hospital to read to the children for their service project at Christmas. The club held a book fair in March.

band groups perform in parade on november 26

Practicing before school started and in the afternoons of half-days, the band was ready for performances at football half-times. They continued practicing daily during sixth period with the full day schedule. Before the beginning of school, they played at the first pep rally, and later at others.

According to new guidelines, the Indianettes and majorettes from last year marched until tryouts for new members were held during the first week in October. Teachers chose nine majorettes and eighteen Indianettes. At their first performance with all of the new groups on October 22, the band formed spinning circles to the tune of "Spinning Wheel." Indianettes used umbrellas when they danced to "Raindrops Keep Falling on My Head."

Joining other high schools in this area, the groups marched in the Carrousel Parade on Thanksgiving Day. Band members presented musical programs in the auditorium at Christmas and in the spring.

Led by drum major Kevin Walls, the band marches along Tryon Street during the Carrousel Parade on November 26.

talented musicians present pop concert in march

Practicing daily, the orchestra added only flutes and trombones from the band for concerts. With membership increased to thirty-three, this group was large enough to perform without assistance from Olympic and Harding orchestra members. During the second semester, members made uniforms of maroon skirts or pants and boleros.

This musical group presented "Christmas Fugue" and "Chestnuts Roasting on an Open Fire" at the Christmas program on December 17. These musicians gave a pop concert of light music in March and a spring concert with the band on April 28. Orchestra members attended a festival in Greensboro in April.

Political Science Club was for any student interested in politics, news events, and current happenings in his community. On November 12 the club's guest was a staff member from the Open House, a recently established drug counseling service. The representative talked to the group about drug abuse and about this organization's attempt to provide help for drug users. Then on January 21 Mr. Paul Harrington from the Youth Bureau was the guest speaker. He talked to club members about underprivileged homes and families and about the way the juvenile department copes with child abuse and juvenile delinquents. Following this, members took part in some interesting demonstrations.

Being previously or presently enrolled in a trade or industrial course was the only requirement for membership in Vocational Industrial Clubs of America. The purpose of the club was to prepare members for leadership in future employment. The club's project, exhibited at the Metrolina Fair, won first place in the 1970 District Three Contest held in Charlotte. It remained on display for the student body in the cafeteria lobby. On February 12 the club's exhibit won another first place award in the District Six contest. Durham hosted the VICA Convention.

plans layouts, pictures, headlines to meet deadlines

In the process of providing the school with a complete yearbook, members of the Tomahawk staff also learned many standard journalistic principles. Creating an annual was a constant struggle to be imaginative, meet deadlines, and be journalistically correct. Drawing layouts and writing headlines, captions, and copy were among the numerous skills junior assistants, new to the staff, had to learn early in the year. Carrying out an effective theme was of major importance for a distinctive yearbook.

An enlightening tour was made through Delmar Publishing Company in September, and some staff members also attended journalistic classes at UNC-C. The 1970 Tomahawk received a first place rating from the Columbia Scholastic Press in national competition. The staff sponsored an annual signing party in May.

Key Club members washed the cars of faculty members during the time classes met on the half-day schedule. After an application drive in October, the club held three mixers to become acquainted with the applicants. They chose new members and initiated them on October 27. Members assisted the Future Teachers as guides at PTA open house. They checked cars for parking permits and acted as hall monitors during the lunch periods. They collected names and addresses of students before printing and selling student directories in January. Members marched on January 24 for the March of Dimes against birth defects. A majority of the members attended the Key Club convention in Columbia, South Carolina, at the end of March.

Civinettes assembled research paper forms for the English Department. They decorated the foyer and made wooden name plates for the faculty at Christmas. Also in December they planted flowers around the school sign and sold fruit cakes. During basketball season they managed the concession stand at games as a winter project. society holds induction ceremony on february 12

Honor Society recognized outstanding students who had high academic achievements and qualities of leadership, service, and good character. Twelve students, two seniors and ten juniors, became new members in February. After several planning meetings, chapter members "kidnapped" the inductees on February 11 and took them to Twin Tops Fish Camp where they enjoyed dinner. On the following morning the group held an induction ceremony in the gym. Speeches about membership requirements preceded the tapping of members, who became official society members as they signed the register. They ordered pins and received certificates. Honor Society made plans for a service project during the second semester.

The club designated the week of February 22 as Friendship Week. A send off announcement over the intercom as well as a number of posters encouraged students to "be friendly" and "like somebody." Working with the Charlotte Welfare Department, the club assembled kits with personal items for foster children.

tribe elects committee according to new guidelines

Elections of Student Council officers were not held in the spring of 1970 because of the uncertainty of school assignments. Instead, a Temporary Government committee served during the summer months and until the elections in October. This group made plans for having a successful school government; they planned the pep rally for the game against Harding; and they constructed and painted the calendar in the cafeteria. According to guidelines received from the School Board, the Temporary Government committee conducted the election of an Executive Committee. Students filled out petitions supporting candidates before the campaigns began. Indians elected nine seniors as the school's leaders. The Executive Council consisted of the Executive Committee members, standing committee chairmen, chairmen of the three class committees, and members of the Temporary Government who were not chosen for the Executive Committee.

At the meeting on February 11 in the auditorium, homeroom representatives listen as the Executive Council explains activities for their upcoming Student Council Day.

Following the election of an Executive Committee, the Student Council began its work. Homecoming Week, climaxing on November 6, was the first project. This week included a dance, organized by the Social Committee; Tacky Indian Day; and a pep rally on Friday. Students joined the WBTV "Letters to Hanoi" campaign for better treatment of prisoners of war. Homeroom representatives collected and sent Christmas cards to soldiers in Viet Nam. Homerooms decorated their doors while the classes competed for best-decorated halls at Christmas. The Sophomore Class accepted the responsibilities of the Christmas dance.

To improve school interest, the Council planned a Student Council Day for February 18, which included these activities — skits given by each committee to revive "dying spirit," a girls' basketball game with boy cheerleaders, and committee tables in the cafeteria to inform students of projects. A third period open hearing for constructive suggestions brought out ideas for a student-faculty basketball game and safety in the school. At the regular meeting later that day, the dress code amendment to allow girls to wear blue jeans gained approval. Furnishings and the stereotape system for the new student lounge was a major project of the year.

eight committees organiz

Student Council organized eight standing committees in September to carry out their projects more effectively. The School Spirit Committee, headed by Janis Dellinger and Pam Looper, met weekly to paint signs, sell booster tags, and plan pep rallies for athletic events. Jan Jones and Nan McClure served as chairmen of the Publicity Committee, which posted the front bulletin board with newspaper articles recognizing outstanding students and occurrences around the school. The House and Grounds Committee, led by Kevin Walls and Vivian Pharr, sponsored and judged the door-decorating contest before Christmas. Elections Committee members with Debbie Austin as chairman provided standards and tallied votes for elections.

The Charlotte Exchange Student Committee sold note cards and doughnuts to assist a junior with travel expenses. They publicized application drives for summer exchange students and host families. Susan Benjamin and Gail Bostian served as chairmen. Suzanne Price was head of the Hospitality Committee, which collected cards from homerooms and sent them to soldiers in Viet Nam at Christmas. The Human Relations Committee, headed by Veatta Sifford and Clifton Potts, planned Tacky Indian Day on November 6 and selected the tackiest students. They later began to work more closely with student problems. The Social Committee, with Janis Rhyne and Lou Ann Bizzell as its chairmen, planned, publicized, and sold tickets for the Homecoming dance. Members chose "They Shoot Horses, Don't They?" as the theme and decorated the gym accordingly. They organized another spring dance.

Entering West was a challenging and intriguing experience for sophomores. They looked forward to becoming scholastically and extracurricularly involved in high school.

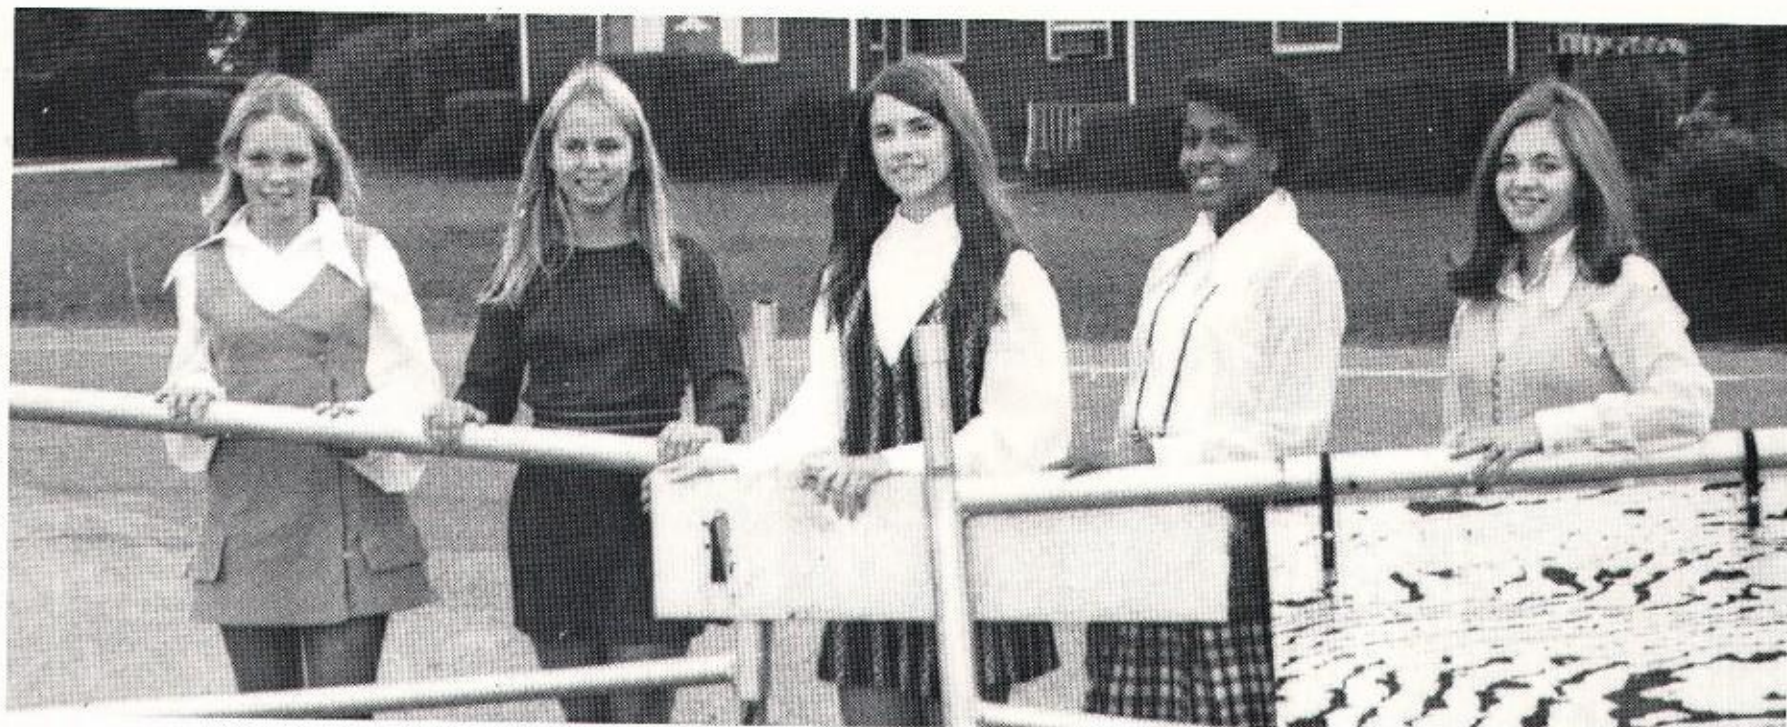

Usual confusion occurred at the start of the year as sophomores received their schedules and embarked on the task of locating their classes and arriving on time.

As time passed, class members adjusted to their new surroundings and classes and began their daily routine in the required courses — English II, physical education, and driver education — plus some electives.

In the fall the Sophomore Executive Committee was an important undertaking during the first few months. Selecting five sophomore girls to serve as junior varsity cheerleaders to promote spirit in the Sophomore Class was also completed.

Scholastic participation was not all the class took part in; they also participated in extracurricular activities. Participation in all junior varsity sports made the students feel more a part of West.

through year sophomores gain wisdom and stature

One facet of high school life and daily routine that sophomores have to adjust to and live with is the long and tiring wait in line for their lunch, even though some students still manage to grin and bear it.

class executive committee takes officers' positions

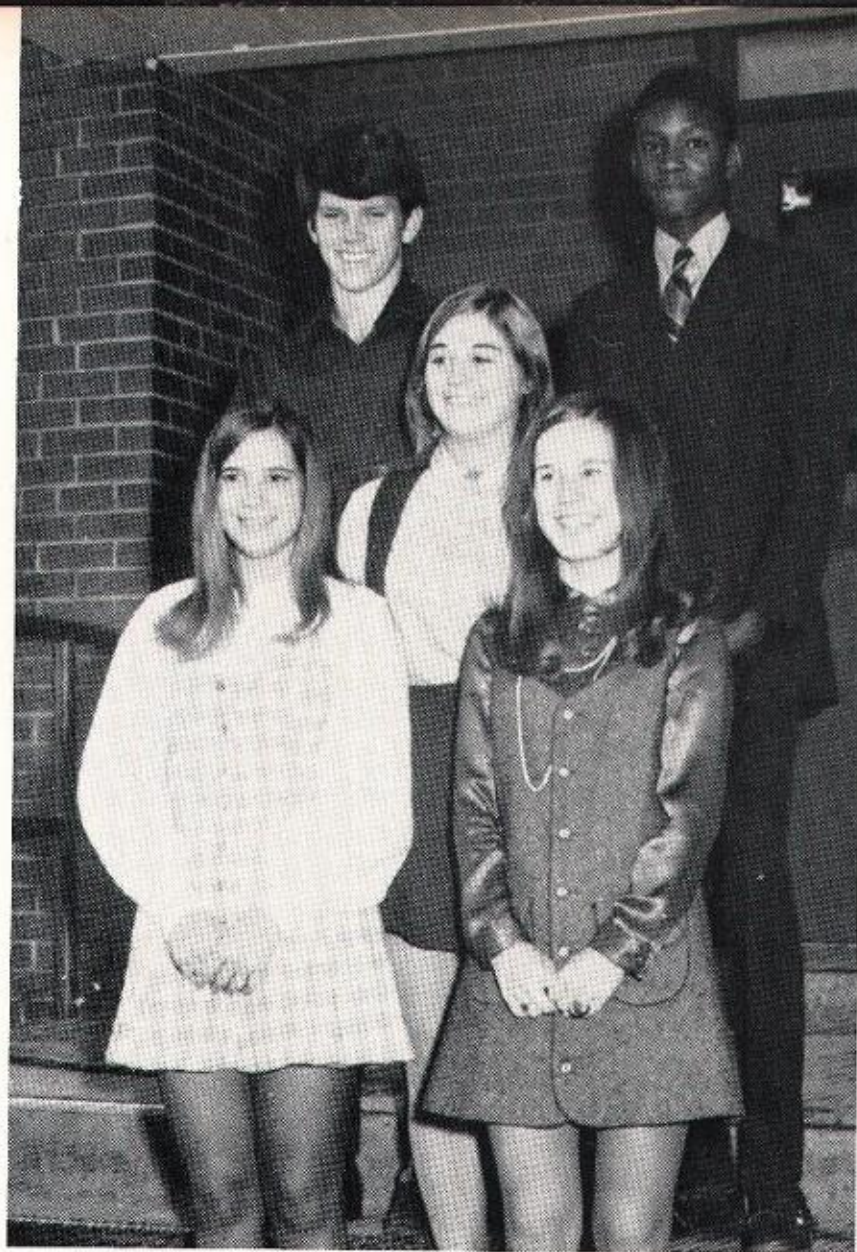

Being already familiar with West, the juniors began another exciting year. Taking the place of traditional class officers, the Junior Class Committee consisted of Greg Overbeck, chairman, Rachel Brackett, Jackie Cherry, Vickie Wells, and Willie Sinclair. These students actively planned the Junior-Senior Prom. To finance this dance, the juniors sold Christmas cards and wrapping paper.

During the first weeks of school, Mischa Hill, Marsha Bigham, Jackie Goode, and Susan Raborn were selected as varsity cheerleaders by a committee of faculty and students. These girls worked hard to maintain good grades while supporting their team at sports events.

October 24, 1970, was the date that college bound class members took P.S.A.T. to further prepare for the college board tests in their senior year.

Membership in the Key Club, Civinette Club, and Honor Society was open to those students who exhibited characteristics of good leadership, scholarship, service, and character.

Anticipating the day for getting class rings, juniors placed their orders during the spring by making a small down payment.

The Junior Class Committee consists of J. Cherry, V. Wells, R. Brackett, G. Overbeck, and W. Sinclair.

Active juniors Becky Tumblin, Debbie Campbell, Pam Looper, and Judy Godley show their team support by helping paint a sign at a school spirit committee meeting.

Homecoming Queen Peggy Goodson expresses elation to Terry Helms after receiving the coveted title.

ebbie cashion, june massey as leaders for '70-'71

Senior rings arrived in several shipments, the first one being on November 12. This was the first year girls could choose dinner rings. With arrival of the rings, the goal of being a senior finally became a reality after twelve years of education.

Showing school spirit, seniors participated in many school activities and sponsored Senior Follies in the spring to subsidize the class gift.

November 24 marked the date calling cards and announcements were ordered. Also during this eventful month, the executive committee selected the gladiola as class flower and the motto "The learning halls of the youth today are the passageways of the adult tomorrow," composed by Johnny Thompson.

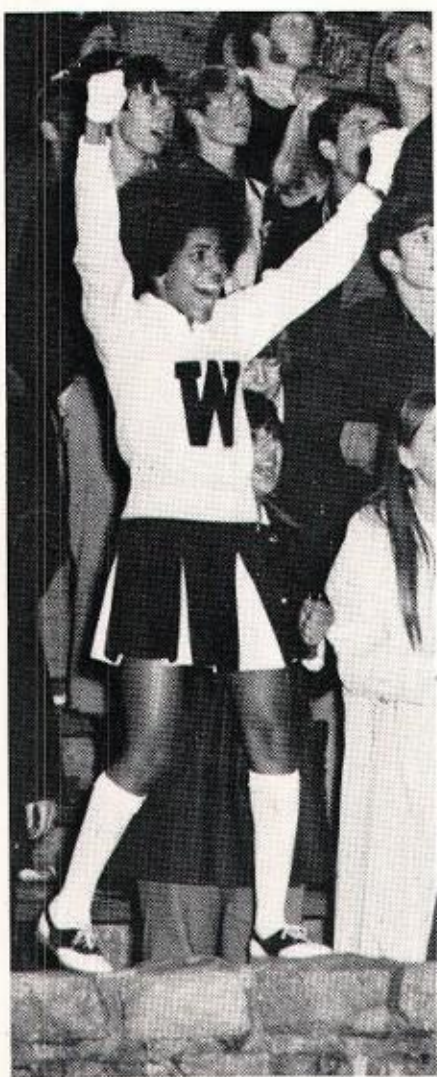

French foreign exchange student Sylvie Olivier was enthusiastically welcomed by the tribe. Sylvie, who resided with the Robert W. Bostians, proved an asset to the student body. Her winning smile and sincerity endeared her to her new friends.

In order to prepare for college entrance, many seniors took the Scholastic Aptitude Tests at scheduled times throughout the year.

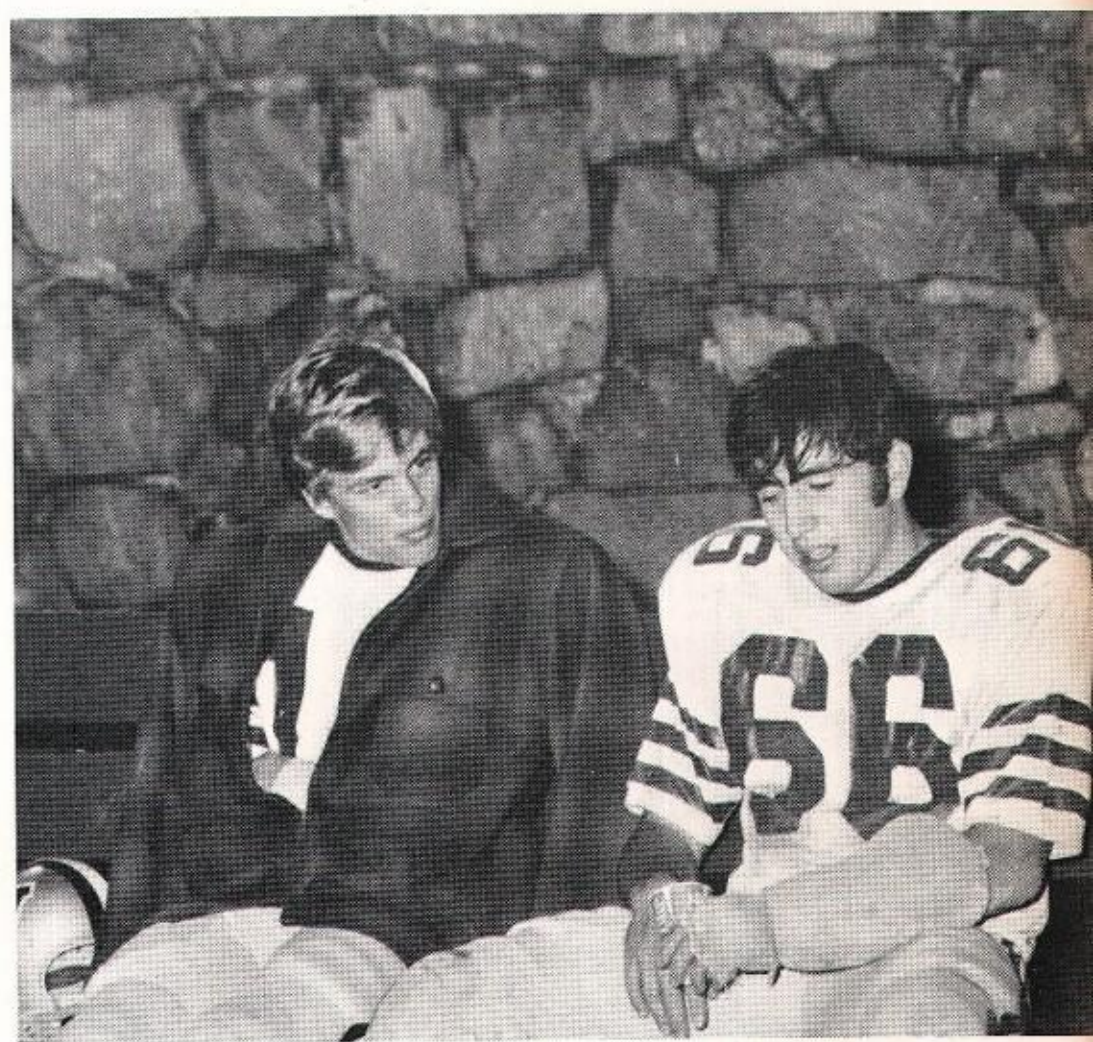

Juniors honored seniors at the annual Junior-Senior prom on April 24 in Ranson Junior High mall. Loonis McGlohan and his orchestra's music enhanced the theme Sayonara.

As a climax for the kaliedescope of events, seniors graduated June 9 at 8:00 in spacious Ovens Auditorium.

V. Sifford shows senior spirit during football game.

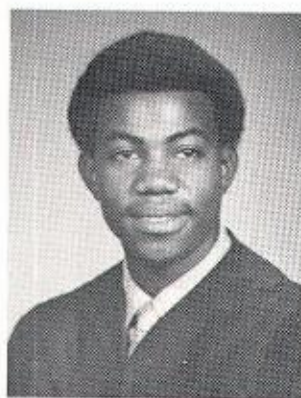

Participating in mock homecoming festivities, Andy Harris, Ricky DeSota, Joe Sadler, Donnie Stephenson await the judges' decision during the November 6 pep rally.

Kaleidoscopic Reflections — events all jumbled together in one big happy memory of what it was like in '70-'71. Each remembrance is a part of a priceless memory. All parts combine to form the kaleidoscopic variety.

*Marian, is This year is almost gone, and I guess I want to see ya! I know more
But on what ever you Bless you may God you from all keep
and you success in life.
I hope to name one child after you, Marian I hope you take it from me. Loveable
D.K. you take it from me.*

*Both Class
May 11, 1971
(Wilene Jackson)*

Striving continuously, the 1971 Tomahawk staff endeavored to present the activities, classes, and organizations of West in a special way. Each facet of school combined to form the whole that can only be West.

Marian,
 I really enjoyed you and I hope we be seen each other in the future.
 With Love
 Nathaniel Reid Jr

Go Marian,
 Thanks for the opportunity given me to autograph your annual. You truly a sugar sweet young lady. I will never forget you Keep me in mine as long as you live. Keep sweet and be cool.
 Love Always
 Gary Davis

MARIAN,
 It has been a pleasure being in a classmate this year with you in being a friend. I wish you the best in the near future.

Oh! yeah - MARION that Jam rings a bell. MARION I've enjoyed being around you at times this year
 Keep that Soulful smile and that Right
 On! way and you will be notice.
 Oh! by the way you are 2 good 2 be 4 gotten.

A friend
 Always

Marian,
 We know you for quite a long time and I've enjoyed being in your presence.
 May God Bless you in all that you do. I hope you'll continue your music career.
 Love,
 Joyce Johnson

Marian, dear sweet cousin it has been a long time since we finally made it across the bridge. I know you try to be the best, but let's be happy with what we have. I hope you are happy in your new home. Love,
 Joyce Johnson

Dear Marian,

I have known you
this past year and it has really been fun. Stay as nice, sweet, crazy, and you will never make an this world.

A friend to the end,
Kathy Warner
"71"

Marian, you are one crazy person that I'll never forget. Stay sweet and remember me and your days as an INDIANETTE. Hasn't
it fun? Good luck in the future.

Always,
Jan Shood

Marian,
you may short, you may crazy,
all of that is true, but you have been a great friend this past year. It has not been a great year, but we'll make it great by saying "Good-bye Sweet" June 9th, 1971. Best of luck in the years to come and may you grow a little taller!
Always a friend,
Judgette
Calhoun

Manan, like I said before in the other book. It really has been wonderful having you in my family life class. Even though we didn't have very much work to do in there. You and I always had something to talk about. Things didn't really start happening until C.W. came along, but now he has been and gone. Your friendship will be like a treasured memory. (Really)
I enjoyed most and that was when we use to gossip about the people coming into K'mart "stealing shoes" ~~Almonds~~ Remember that. I wish that I had been there to see them. I would have taken the shoes from them and turned around and beat them side of their head! The time that I like most in family life were the ~~test~~ ^{test} time. Remember when we cheated and you made more than I wasn't that dumb. Our group was the best of all the rest. Pasty, Cathy, Evelyn, Sheral, and of course Manan. We can't leave out the "nuts" can we.
Manan I am running out of things to say. As you can tell and the time is drawing near when we must say good bye.
But there is one thing I want to say, and that is. I hope that our friendship will continue on even though school will be out. I will leave my telephone number with you in for just for you to look at. But for you to call. "392-50" a friend in deed is a friend in need your friend "Pearline" I hope that our friendship will continue on.
Keep on pushing
on!
From a friend Pearline

Marion,
I've only known you for half a year but I can truly say that you are a very sweet person.
I want to wish you all the luck in the world.
Hope to see you around sometime Shirley "71"

Marion,
It been nice knowing you all these year.

Hi Marian,
 It has been great to know you over the past years. I hope that you will be happy
 in the future.
 And always get what you want because no one is more deserving of it.
 Good Luck!

Marion,
 I think you're the greatest. This year was a complete bass. It could have been better if everyone had been together. But I hope everything will work out for you and your future man. Remember me as long as you can.
 Because I will remember you, and especially when I hear, "Cherish what's dear to your whole this year to you." Take it for what it's worth.
 A friend Always

Marion,
 It's been fun, this year near just being your friend maybe next year or this summer we'll meet again give luck
 A friend to the end

Marion,
 We have completed our twelve great years. And now have great memories of our great friends and
 our great future.
 We have great memories
 of our great friends and
 our great future.
 We have great memories
 of our great friends and
 our great future.

Marian,

Part of this year (1971) has been great, dynamite or however you would put it. I don't really have much to say because of the ~~that~~, but I can say that the time ~~(2)~~ I spent with you has been together, I mean really together. It has been a great achievement for me to know a person like (not too many girls left in this world like you). Although I didn't see that much of you this year I would have liked to feel that we're still close. Now the school year is over so I am looking forward to this summer.

Much love

Curtis

Marian
 It has been great knowing and been with you this year we have had lot of fun and I will always remember you. Wish you lots of luck in the future
 Keep sweet, nice, and lovable

Marian,
 It's been great being "Big Sister" hasn't it? I'm glad that you were in English Mrs. Avery is really great! I want to wish you lots of luck in the future! Best wishes

Marian,
 It has been a pleasure for me to know you for this whole last year. So I wish you the best of luck for the year to come upon you and may happiness follow you wherever you may go. "Go."

 is good for you.
 That personally Hope you know what its success will stand out when you come to you this time and I hope you want to be in the world I remember in which we have all of the good you are a very nice Marian

Marion,

We made it through grammar school, were separated in junior high, and found ourselves here at West during the final year of high school. I had to rebuild our friendship for I had to regret I had forgotten you. For a ^{such} small ^{amount of} time we ~~had~~ became the best of friends.

May our friendship forever live.
May only the best of life come to you and yours.

Forever Love and Luck

Marion,
we made it through this school year together.
Next year we'll be departed.
Let's not get too fast in the years to come; you know I won't be there to slow you down.
Stay sweet and don't get crazier.
You'll do for right now. (smile)
To yours yours,

MARION

IT'S BEEN A NICE TIME
WITH YOU AND KNOWING
YOU. YOU HAVE BEEN ABOUT
NICE LITTLE YOUNG GIRL AND YOU HAVE BEEN SO SWEET.
I HOPE I WILL SEE YOU AGAIN
BUT I KNOW I WON'T BECAUSE
YOU WON'T BE AT SCHOOL ANMORE
BUT I MAY SEE YOU AT SOME PLACE
NICE KNOWING YOU

YOU ONE OF FRIEND
THE ONE WHO SLEEP
ALL THE TIME

Dearest Marian,
you are my baby doll.
I'll never forget our crazy Indianette squad.
It really has been a wonderful pleasure getting back with you again. Don't you stay to far away from me just because school is over. O.K.?

to know that you in maine so long at me for a while come being but I never love to be the future
the

you are a fine person with a lot going for yourself and you make sure you give it to the right man!
Love ya!
Marjorie
